Unionists Pick Jail

QUEBEC (CP)—Thirty leaders of Quebec public service unions renounced the conditions of their bail pending appeal on contempt of court sentences today and gave themselves up to Quebec police to serve their jail terms.

The move was announced at a news conference by Norbert Rodrigue, president of the National Federation of Services and acting leader of a common front of public service unions in the province.

The leaders will surrender at a police station later today and expected to begin immediately serving sentences of up to six months in prison.

Rodrigue said the 34, cited for contempt of court injunctions during an April strike, will be paid from union funds during their time in prison.

They will join three top Quebec labor federation presidents sentenced a week ago to one-year terms for contempt.

The sentences last week sparked province-wide labor turmoil that is continuing.

He also said the common front of public service unions remains ready to negotiate with the government, but only "in a normal context."

He said this meant the common front leaders would have to be freed to act as spokesmen in negotiations.

They are Marcel Pepin, president of the 250,000 member Confederation of National Trade Unions, Louis Laberge, president of the 250,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor and Yvon Charbonneau, president of the 70,000-member Quebec Teachers Corp.

All the contempt sentences were imposed for counselling union members to defy injunctions ordering a return to work in some Quebec hospitals.

Reporters were told the 34 persons who were to turn themselves in for imprisonment today were not trying to make martyrs of themselves.

Rodrigue said they preferred to serve their sentences now rather than in a year or two.

In a briefing before they left to turn themselves in at a police station, they were told to ask to see a parole officer immediately and make a request for parole.

Wheelchair Campaign Vowed

Times News Service

Alabama Governor George Wallace, crippled by a would-be assassin's bullet lodged near his spine today vowed from his hospital bed to continue his campaign for the U.S. presidency — even if he has to take to the hustings in a wheelchair. (See also Page 3.)

Doctors at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md., outside Washington say that Wallace, 52, is paralysed from the waist down as a result of the bullet, one of two which struck him at a shopping centre rally in Laurel, Md., Monday.

Dr. Joseph Schanno, vascular surgeon at the hospital, said Wallace spent a peaceful night following emergency surgery in which it was decided not to remove the .38 slug at the base of his spine.

The governor is in satisfactory condition.

"Nobody with this kind of injury is completely out of danger for several days," the surgeon added.

The governor's only comment on his injuries had been "it hurts," Dr. Schanno said.

Wallace was given eight pints of blood Monday night and has not eaten since he was admitted to the hospital.

Any decision on removing the bullet lodged against his spine will be taken later by a team of neuro-surgeons, Dr. Schanno said.

"It would not have been to any advantage to have gone ahead and removed it last night," he added.

Wallace was hit by four or five bullets, only two of which remained in his body. One was removed from his right shoulder during emergency surgery, Monday.

In police custody, charged in the shooting is Arthur Bremer, a 21-year-old white man from Milwaukee.

Three other people were wounded in the hail of bullets which felled Gov. Wallace — a woman campaign worker, an Albama state trooper, serving as his bodyguard and a secret service agent.

All are reported recovering from their wounds and in satisfactory condition.

A Baltimore magistrate Monday night ordered Bremer held under $200,000 bond on charges of shooting Wallace and the secret service agent. A court appearance is scheduled for May 24.

If both his victims live, Bremer faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count. Should either die, the penalty is death.

Bremer, a nondescript former photography student had been thought to be a supporter of the Alabama governor.

When arrested he was wearing a Wallace button in his lapel. There was also a Wallace sticker on his apartment door.

Following Bremer's arrest, police discovered that he had been questioned for four hours by officers in Kalamazoo, Mich., before a Wallace rally there Saturday.

He was picked up after police received a complaint about a "suspicious man" and released after questioning.

He was also arrested last

CONNALLY RESIGNS FROM NIXON CABINET

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon made a surprise personal announcement today that Treasury Secretary John Connally — "a tower of strength for the president" — is resigning.

Nixon told reporters that he will nominate George P. Shultz, former secretary of labor and currently director of the office of management and budget, to succeed Connally at treasury.

To take over from Shultz, Nixon will name the deputy director, Caspar Weinberger.

Connally said politics didn't figure in his decision to leave the cabinet after 18 months.

Asked what role he might play in the fall election campaign, he replied, "I don't know," and then added it's "entirely possible."

He has been the only Democrat in President Nixon's cabinet.

Although Connally declared that "I have no political aspirations and no particular ambitions," he declined to rule out the possibility that he might answer the call should Nixon ask him to be his vice-presidential running mate in this year's election.

The departing treasury chief said he didn't think such an offer would be forthcoming and asserted: "I don't want to engage in that type of speculation."

After a moment's pause, Connally added: "I'm tired and I want a change but I'm not going to withdraw from the human race or from the political life of my nation."

Connally served as secretary of the navy under President John F. Kennedy, resigning to run for the governorship of Texas. While serving as governor he was wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1963.

OVERFLIGHT TAX PROBED

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang was asked in the Commons Monday to review a bill passed by the Manitoba legislature that would levy a tax on airline flights over the province.

E. B. Osler (L—Winnipeg South Centre) said the bill, which has not yet received royal assent, would charge a 5 per cent tax on overflights. He wanted the minister to find out how the federal government could assure the free use of air space by Canadians.

China-N. Viet Supply Line Broken by U.S. Bombs

Times News Services

U.S. fighter-bombers today wrecked North Vietnam's air defence headquarters on the southern edge of Hanoi and cut the main pipeline feeding tanks and supply trucks for Red forces on the northern front in South Vietnam.

Also smashed have been two key rail links between Hanoi and China as well as the Dragon's Jaw bridge at Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of Hanoi, a key link in North Vietnam's supply network.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Command estimate that the Communists have only a month's supply for fuel for tanks and other vehicles.

Co-incidental with the stepped-up attacks on their supply lines, Red forces slowed their month-and-a-half long advance.

Saigon troops, meanwhile, continued to consolidate strength around the city of Hue in an effort to stall an all-out Red offensive on the old Imperial capital.

However, in Washington, columnist Jack Anderson claims that the White House is in possession of a report from Saigon which says Hue probably will fall to the North Vietnamese.

"And, if it does," he told a law enforcement seminar, "the Thieu government will likely fall with it."

Also in Washington, U.S. specialists on mine warfare say that "it is essentially impossible to sweep modern minefields" of the type seeded around seven North Vietnamese ports a week ago.

They say that any Soviet or

TURN-IN-A-PUSHER PLAN URGED FOR B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio in the Social Credit government, Monday night proposed a "turn-in-a-pusher" program similar to those tried in Tampa, Fla. and London, Ont.

Speaking to a dinner held by the Vancouver Association of Insurance Women, Mrs. McCarthy advocated a system similar to one in Florida where anonymous tipsters are financially rewarded for information leading to the conviction of drug pushers.

She said the Vancouver business community could put up the necessary money.

"In Tampa they had 5,785 calls with 44 arrests and 34 convictions," she said. "In order to get 34 convictions it cost $2,000 in reward money — it takes a lot of organizing but very little money."

BELFAST — A British patrol stormed through a gauntlet of stones, bottles and bullets today in an attempt to capture two youthful gunmen spotted in the Roman Catholic Andersontown area.

The soldiers, firing rubber bullets as they ran, were pelted by crowds of teen-agers in a 500-yard race to catch the gunmen, who took refuge in a house.

As they neared the building, the soldiers began drawing gunfire from its windows, but when they charged inside their quarry had vanished.

Another patrol in the Lower Falls Road was fired at five times by a gunman without suffering any casualties.

The incidents followed a night of civilian Protestant-Catholic violence here and in Londonderry.

An explosion wrecked a Protestant bar here late Monday night, injuring 17 people and sending Protestant youths on a rampage.

A 50-pound bomb in a parked car shattered the Bluebell Tavern in Sandy Row, a Protestant district in East Belfast.

Protestant youths threw up barricades around the street, while others charged into a nearby business district, hurling rocks at offices and smashing in windows with clubs.

Police said "older and wiser heads" finally persuaded the youths to return home, and Protestant residents removed the barricades.

50,000 Off National Jobless Total

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of unemployed persons dropped by 50,000 from mid-March to mid-April, reversing the pattern of the last two years.

Statistics Canada and the manpower department reported today that there were 592,000 unemployed last month, down from 642,000 the previous month and 659,000 a year earlier.

In both 1971 and 1970 unemployment rose slightly in April and had its big drop in May as warmer weather stimulated the economy.

Contributing to the improved unemployment figures was a smaller-than-usual increase in the number of persons in the labor force.

British Columbia unemployment fell to 71,000 last month from 82,000 the previous month and 72,000 a year earlier.

The number of persons employed across Canada rose to 8,085,000 in April from 8,016,000 in March, while the total labor force rose to 8,677,000 from 8,658,.

Both employment and labor force were up from the 7,737,000 employed and 8,396,000 in the labor force for April, 1971.

While the actual rate of unemployment fell to 6.8 per cent of the labor force in April from 7.4 per cent in March and 7.8 per cent in April, 1971, the seasonally-adjusted rate also fell, to 5.8 per cent from six per cent in March.

The seasonally-adjusted rate is computed by statisticians to show the underlying trend of unemployment by removing normal variations due to several factors.

The new figures are based on a survey of 30,000 households taken for the week ended April 22.

Statistics Canada said the March-to-April gain of 19,000 in the labor force was smaller than usual. The increase in young persons and men over 24 was smaller than normal, while there was a decrease in the number of women over 24 who were employed or looking for employment.

Unemployment and unemployment rates fell in every region, with Ontario showing the biggest drop. The number of unemployed in Ontario was 161,000 in April, down from 186,000 the previous month and 205,000 a year earlier. The Ontario labor force declined to 3,305,000 from 3,390,000 in March.

Widespread labor disputes in Quebec helped bring total employment there down to 2,192,000 from 2,135,000 in March. But the April figure was still higher than the 2,102,000 employed a year earlier.

There were 216,000 Quebec unemployed last month, down from 220,000 in March and 234,000 in April, 1971.

Persons directly involved in labor disputes do not affect employment or unemployment totals, but any persons laid off because of strikes elsewhere are included in unemployment figures.

Unemployment in the Atlantic provinces dropped to 73,000 from 80,000 the previous month and 75,000 a year earlier. The prairies had 71,000 unemployed in April, down from 74,000 in March and 73,000 in April, 1971.

Workers, Jobs Up —Bennett

Premier Bennett said today that an "enormous influx" of people into British Columbia's labor force in the last 12 months has been offset by an even larger increase in jobs.

Employment figures just released from Statistics Canada show that despite 64,000 new people in the labor force since April, 1971, there were 65,000 new jobs created for a net improvement of 1,000 jobs, the premier stated.

The "enormous influx" of people from other provinces is one of the reasons Bennett announced early that there will be a Crown corporation created by the next legislative session to aid small processing and manufacturing industries with attractive loans.

Bennett called the press gallery this morning to release the figures and report that as of April 22 last year the labor force in B.C. numbered 885,000. It rose to 949,000 at the same time this year.

The number of people employed in the labor market rose from $13,000 to 878,000 in the same period.

There is still "too much unemployment," Bennett said, but this is mostly because of immigration from the other provinces.

The premier said he wanted to announce the industry-aiding corporation now so that farmers and others can "plan and get ready" for the program.

Bennett has promised that the corporation will provide loans to small manufacturing and processing businesses at very low initial interest rates.

ISHERWOOD WILL WIN TISDALLE SEAT: WAC

Socred MLA John Tisdalle's nomination defeat last Friday is proof that Social Credit is a grass-roots movement, Premier Bennett said Monday.

Bennett also predicted that the newly-nominated candidate for Saanich and the Islands, Foster Isherwood, will win Tisdalle's seat in the next provincial election.

Tisdalle, MLA in the same riding since 1953, was beaten out by Isherwood on the second ballot of a nominating convention.

Bennett was asked about the situation as he entered cabinet Monday afternoon.

"If the people of British Columbia ever wanted proof that Social Credit is a real grass roots movement, they have the answer there.

"And the new candidate will win."

to go to jail was given a black armband of mourning.

Meanwhile, waterfront activity in Montreal was halted today by two walkouts, one of them linked directly to protests against imprisonment of three top Quebec union leaders.

Elsewhere, some workers returned to their jobs, others remained out and some new protests were launched as the labor situation in the province became more and more confused.

Police cleared 200 medical and non-medical workers from the Albert Prevost Hospital in north-end Montreal early today, ending an occupation of the building that began Friday.

But, at St. Jean de Dieu, the province's largest mental institution, director Rejean Gauthier said about half the 1,200 hospital employees were prohibited from entering by picket lines.

In Ottawa, sources say they expect all parties will agree to debate a Commons motion today calling for committee study of statements by New Democrat Leader David Lewis regarding the judge who recently sentenced three Quebec labor leaders to a year in jail.

Lewis told the United Steelworkers of America at a policy conference Saturday that "any judge who has the stupidity to impose the savage sentence of one year in jail on the three union leaders has no right to be on the bench in any court in this land."

The three labor heads were found in contempt of court for urging workers to ignore injunctions ordering Quebec unions back to work during recent general strikes.

Lewis added that "the moment a defeated Liberal or Conservative is appointed to the bench, he thinks he's God."

"That's the characteristic of a judge who sits on the bench."

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, who said he presented the motion asking for a committee study of Lewis's comments with a "very heavy heart," said the judiciary is unable to defend itself from remarks of a disparaging nature. A Commons committee should study the situation and report.

Demands continued in Quebec for release of the three labor leaders and repeal of strike-ending legislation passed last month.

The municipal council at Alma, 130 miles north of Quebec City, passed a resolution Monday night urging the provincial government cease all acts against the workers of the province and take whatever steps are necessary to get negotiations going again on about 900 expired contracts.

It said the three labor leaders should be urged to appeal their contempt sentences.

A few other municipalities in the province affected by the sporadic protests have passed similar resolutions.

The common front of unions which staged a province-wide strike last month, leading directly to the contempt sentences, represents more than 200,000 public servants.

Actual unemployment rates were 10.9 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, down from 12.1 per cent in March and 11.6 per cent in April, 1971; 9.2 per cent in Quebec, down from 9.3 and 10; 4.9 per cent in Ontario, down from 5.6 and 6.5; five per cent on the prairies, down from 5.4 and 5.4; and 7.5 per cent in British Columbia, down from 8.6 and 8.1.

ADJUSTED RATES DOWN

Seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates were down on the whole, but up slightly in Quebec and the prairies.

The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rates, for April and March, were: Atlantic, 7.7 and 8.3; Quebec, 7.7 and 7.5; Ontario 4.2 and 4.7; Prairies, 4.1 and four; British Columbia, seven and eight.

Unemployment rates eased for all age groups, although persons under 25 continued to be hard hit.

Last month 11.5 per cent of persons 14 to 24 years old were unemployed, compared with 12.6 per cent in March and 13.6 per cent in April, 1971.

Men 25 and over had a 5.9-per-cent unemployment rate, down from 6.3 and 6.9, while women 25 and over had a 3.6 per-cent unemployment rate, down from 4.3 and 3.8.

Last month's labor force included 2.2 million young people, 4.5 million men 25 and over and 1.95 women 25 and over.

Chinese minesweepers sent into the area run two major risks — one potentially deadly, the other potentially embarrassing.

A minesweeper blown up by U.S. underwater explosives could gravely escalate the already tense international situation.

However, ships that arrive but fail to clear the minefields would leave both Communist powers with red faces.

Elsewhere in the U.S., at least 77 people were arrested in scattered anti-war protests on Monday. This brings the total of arrests since President Nixon's blockade announcement a week ago to nearly 3,000.

In one of the major protests, more than 100 people tied up rush-hour traffic on New York's Henry Hudson Parkway for close to 15 minutes until dispersed by police.

MOON REACHABLE BUT NOT VANCOUVER

By ERIC DOWNTON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Although technology can land men on the moon, it can't stop slides blocking rail routes through the Rockies.

This was admitted in the Commons Monday by Justice Minister Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board.

During exchanges over wheat shipments, Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) asked Lang whether discussions were underway with the railway companies "aimed at providing protection against snow slides, mud slides and similar hazards to transportation, with the object of ensuring year-round movement of grain from the prairies to Vancouver."

Lang: "The railroads have certainly had the advantage of learning, in the very difficult winter we have just experienced, how to improve their ability to deal with such obstacles.

"However, no one should be misled into thinking we can do anything about severe snow, mud and severe conditions generally, which exist in the Rockies in winter, short of levelling those small hills."

Gleave remarked that Lang apparently wished to give the impression that in an age when men could get to the moon, they could not always get through to Vancouver in winter.

Stabbing Evidence 'A Lie'—Accused

A 21-year-old Victoria man, charged with the stabbing murder early Feb. 24 of 20-year-old Russell Streeter, today denied under oath being armed with a knife and said earlier testimony by a Crown witness to that effect was "a lie."

Flewin, on trial for non-capital murder before Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan and a jury of six men and six women, also testified about his contact with the dead man minutes before the death.

"I put my hands on his shoulders and pushed him back," Flewin said. That was the extent of their physical contact, the accused testified.

And he denied hearing the dead man say anything about being stabbed or asking what he had been stabbed with.

Monday, Crown witness Miss Peggy Tychkowsky told the court she had heard the dead man say, "What did you stick me with, man? What did you stick me with, man? What did you stick me with?"

The defence by lawyer Robert Price began today, and immediately conflicting testimony about the circumstances leading up to the Streeter death early Feb. 24 in the parking lot of the Colony Motor Inn beer parlor began.

In a statement to the jury before he began his presentation, defence counsel said the Crown's case "is founded upon the circumstances of a push given by the accused person to the deceased" at the time of the altercation. "You're asked to assume . . . that the push" was a stabbing.

He also promised to prove that a statement purported to have been made by the accused after his arrest was never made.

The trial, now in its fourth day, was continuing this afternoon.

Fishermen Face Arrest, Egan Warns

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. William A. Egan has served notice that foreign fishing vessels face arrest by Alaska law enforcement officers if they are caught fishing in waters listed as outside the United States boundary on national charts but inside the state-defined limits.

Egan urged a U.S. Senate subcommittee Monday to seek the withdrawal of charts drawn up by the U.S. state department which "gave up thousands of square miles of previous Alaskan territory at the stroke of a draftsman's pen."

The subcommittee sitting here agreed to seek a retraction of the charts.

The controversial charts, offered by the state department as preliminary outlines of new federal and state territorial boundaries, previously followed the configuration of the Alaskan coastline. Earlier charts were drawn with straight-line boundaries from point to point.

As a result, the new charts show enclaves of international waters in areas that Egan said "history and logic" proved were Alaskan.

Take advantage of the handicapped.

If you hire people.
And want capable, productive, committed employees, you should be hiring the handicapped worker.

Firstly, the word "handicapped" is misleading. When a worker is disabled he has many skills remaining that maximize his ability and are not affected by his disability.

In that sense, he is not handicapped at all. He is an equal competitor at his skill. And he asks no favors.

Most disabled people have developed new skills. They show incredibly high standards of productivity.
They appreciate their jobs.
And they are stable and reliable.
They have a little extra to prove.
All they ask for is the chance.

A good businessman can spot a solid investment. Hiring the disabled is smart business. Our case histories prove this. Contact our Rehabilitation Services Department and see what we have to offer.
Then take advantage of it.

Shots Alter U.S. Politics

By HAYNES JOHNSON
The Washington Post

Once again an assassin's bullet has disrupted the American political process and thrown a critical presidential campaign into disarray.

Like the earlier shots that felled John and Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King, the bullets that struck George Corley Wallace Monday have irrecoverably altered the politics of this campaign.

The shooting will overshadow the actions of every other candidate from now until the election in November. And once again it forces forward on to the centre stage the most disturbing of all American issues — violence.

After more than a decade of prominence on the American scene, George Wallace Monday stood on the verge of winning one of his greatest political triumphs.

FAVORED TO WIN

He is favored to win presidential primaries in Maryland and Michigan today, both states that have gone Democratic in the last three presidential elections.

No one will ever know exactly to what extent the ballots being cast are affected by his assailant's bullets.

Wallace is bound to receive an outpouring of sympathy from the voters, as did Theodore Roosevelt when he was shot during a campaign speech in 1912.

The immediate reaction of men of all parties and political hue underscored a sense of a national tragedy, compounded because it has happened so often in the recent political past.

When word reached George McGovern, campaigning in Michigan, he asked his audience to "hope and pray for the speedy recovery of Governor Wallace and say a prayer for our own country."

McGovern added: "I'm shocked by this savage act. If we've got to the point in this country where a political figure can't express his views on the issues of the day, that he can't seek the presidency of this country without being shot, then I tremble for the future of our nation."

As in other moments of national horror, there was a clear drawing together of those who represent widely divergent views.

"There's a time for political discussion, but I don't think the time is when Gov. Wallace is in the hospital fighting for his life," said a spokesman for the Democratic national committee.

Transcending all the words was an almost inarticulate sense of shock and a sad recognition that Americans have lived through all this before.

The 1972 political year began with hopes that it would be unlike the bitter, divisive past. The war that had so dominated U.S. political debates four years ago seemed to be diminishing.

COUNTRY SCARRED

The riots that had scarred the country had subsided or disappeared.

The demonstrations that made political life unpleasant if not untenable were a thing of the past.

So — it seemed — were the scenes of screaming crowds surrounging a fallen political leader.

But, in less than a week, all that has passed.

The shooting of George Wallace came exactly a week after President Nixon announced the mining of North Vietnamese ports and increased bombing raids which raised the spectre of a direct confrontation with the Soviet Union.

Protests, demonstrations and emotional debates have followed in the wake of those steps.

Already, the politicians are going through their essential — and private — speculations of the impact on their futures.

In the McGovern camp, for instance, there is fear that the shooting somehow might be held irrationally against their candidate. One of the McGovern strategists noted that a radio report of the shooting said McGovern supporters were present at the rally, and a wire service story made the same point.

An aide of Sen. Hbert Humphrey speculated that the shooting could have one of two results: sympathy flowing to Wallace or a recoiling by the public against a candidacy that is associated with intense controversy.

TEDDY OUT

The shooting inevitably focussed fresh attention on the last of the Kennedy brothers. The private consensus of those interviewed was that Teddy now definitely would be removed for speculation as a possible compromise nominee when the Democrats convene at Miami Beach in July.

Then there are questions about what might happen to the delegates Wallace already has won this year. Before the shooting, it appeared he would go to Miami in command of some 325 to 350 delegates. That represents a vital 10 per cent of the 3,016 delegates whose support may be essential for anyone to win the nomination.

Of all those speaking out, publicly and privately, perhaps no one expressed a more basic concern — and basic question — than one woman who called a newspaper moments after hearing of the shooting.

"Please don't just say, in bold, black headlines, that Wallace has been shot," she said quietly.

"I am not a supporter of Gov. Wallace, but what I want to know, what we all want to know, is why this happened?"

Hers is the key question. As in the past, no one had an answer.

A MAN IDENTIFIED as Arthur H. Bremer (in circle) was questioned by police on a "suspicious person" report four hours before Governor George Wallace addressed a rally in Kalamazoo, Mich., Saturday night. Police today identified Bremer in the picture as being the same person arrested after Wallace was shot and wounded Monday in Laurel, Md. Kalamazoo police at the time were satisfied with Bremer's statement and he was released.

MENTALLY READY FOR THIS RIDE

By JULES IOH

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — The ride to the hospital seemed interminably long to Gov. George C. Wallace. "How much longer?" he asked several times during the 15-minute trip. "I hope they give me a shot of something soon."

It was a trip the provocative campaigner was mentally prepared to make. "I suppose someday somebody might throw something at me other than a rotten egg," Wallace once remarked during his 1968 campaign for the presidency.

Did he worry much about being shot?

"It's not something you let worry you," he said at that time, "but I'm fully aware of the possibility. I'm reminded of it every time I step behind that lectern."

LECTERN IS STEEL

The lectern is a three-sided, bulletproof, steel barricade which takes two men to set in place.

Wallace used it in three campaigns the last eight years and spoke from behind it Monday at nearby Laurel — just before he mingled in the crowd and was shot.

At his side and also wounded was Capt. E. C. Dothard of the Alabama state police, a taciturn man who has described his feelings for the governor simply: "I love that little man."

At rallies across the country the last eight years, burly Capt. Dothard has fended off blows from picket signs and many times has stepped in front of Wallace amid barrages of rotten eggs, rocks and bottles, always without a word.

Monday, Dothard, who suffered a flesh wound in his right side, wordlessly held up his forefinger and thumb in a okay sign when he was helped into the ambulance alongside the governor.

Wallace returned the sign and winked at Dothard, who was released from hospital Monday night.

CALLED BY SHOOTER

Wallace was leaving the rally, in a supermarket parking lot, when the man accused of shooting him called him back, said Emmett Eaton, a campaign aide.

"Hey, George, ain't you going to shake my hand?" Eaton said the man called out.

"George turned and walked toward him and that's when he was shot," Eaton said.

Eaton said he rushed to the fallen Wallace, who was lying on his back, and began unbuttoning his shirt.

"Where did they get me?" Eaton said the governor asked him.

"I told him I didn't think it was too bad," Eaton said. "I don't think he though it was either."

Another campaign worker, Charles Carmon of Mobile, Ala., said Mrs. Wallace embraced the governor as he lay on the pavement, staining her bright yellow jacket with his blood.

"The blood was awful," Eaton said. "I tried to stop it with my handkerchief and borrowed two more handkerchiefs. It seemed like the ambulance would never get there."

At length, Eaton said, they despaired of the ambulance arriving and loaded Wallace into a station-wagon. Just then the ambulance arrived.

"He was in pain," Eaton said. "But he was the calmest one in the ambulance.

"He asked for a pillow and I put a blanket under his head. He asked about his wounds. I tore his shirt off and tried to step the blood with bandages. He didn't complain. It was then that I noticed the wound in his chest."

TAKEN TO SURGERY

The ambulance drove to Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring. Wallace was taken immediately to an examining room; then into surgery.

"All of us knew this was something we might have to contend with some day," said Eaton, who had served as an advance man on Wallace's campaign in 1964, 1968 and during the current primaries. maries.

"In fact, just before the shooting I remarked to George Mangum a campaign worker: 'Well, that's another one under our belts,'" Eaton said.

"It's a remark we've made many times and we all know what we mean by it," he said.

October in a Milwaukee suburg and fined for carrying a concealed weapon.

Relatives, friends and acquaintances of the accused man picture him as an enigmatic loner with a penchant for pornography.

In his apartment, police found a Confederate flag, sex comics, a clipping file on Wallace's political activities dating back to 1968, and a personal notebook with entries such as: My Country Tiz of Thee, Sweet Land of Bigotry and Happiness Is Hearing George Wallace Sing the National Anthem or Having Him Arrested for a Hit-and-Run Traffic Accident.

Bremer's father, William, 58, a Milwaukee truckdriver was dumbfounded by the controversy which suddenly forced his working-class family into the limelight.

"I can't believe my boy did this," he told reporters.

"We never even had a gun in the house and he didn't know any more about politics than any boy his age.

"If my boy did this, he must have got awfully sick."

Life From the Waterfront

It is encouraging that a long-term plan for Victoria's waterfront is now being developed. The seaside environment is vital to Victoria's character, yet few areas have received less real planning effort than parts of our local shoreline. Planning does not mean that everything should be turned into parkland. But it does mean that the use of land should be based on beneficial purpose; it should not be the result of chance, apathy or individual self-interest which is to the public disadvantage.

The Inner Harbor is the natural focus of attention in the city and it deserves special treatment. The excellent surroundings — the Legislative Buildings, the Centennial museum and archives complex, and the Empress Hotel — call for development of other parts of the harbor in keeping with these three. The general theme of promenade and recreation is therefore well chosen. But a high-rise proposal just around the corner from the Causeway has still to be justified architecturally for its effect on the existing buildings.

The matter of public access to the seafront is an important one. By pedestrian ways along the shore, or by public access at frequent points, the sea should belong to the public. In the industrial area, of course, this will be less possible and less desirable, but the planners do well to keep in mind the possibilities of changes in Victoria's necessary harbor industries and the need to direct future developments along compatible lines.

What has been designated as the "working harbor," north of Johnson Street bridge, is probably the least sightly of the waterfront sections, and steps are already underway to try to remedy this. In this connection the city should give some attention to the property lines of waterfront lots in the area, for the navigable channel in these waters seems to be appreciably narrower than it once was, and some properties show that dumping has taken place. Some surveys may be in order.

The problems of planning clearly illustrate the need for the city to have as full control as possible of use of the waterfront, otherwise this vitally important area will not properly set the pace for the city's development. The present stage of planning is described as a "position paper" and not a final plan. The important thing is that planning is at last becoming a major part of City Council's work, based on the impetus of the last few years, and may do much to replace the laissez faire attitude which in an earlier era created many of the problems which we have before us today.

". . . we're planning to go to several local beaches this summer and kiss them goodbye . . ."

The Downward Path of Violence

The assassination attempt on Governor George Wallace of Alabama sent a wave of shock and concern throughout the United States, not only for the victim of a gunman's bullets, but for the state of the nation itself. One after another, political spokesmen have deplored the trend of violence which in only a few years has resulted in the murder of the two Kennedys — a president and a presidential candidate — of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., the prominent Negro leader, of several other lesser political and racial figures, and the wounding of still others. There obviously is present a grave danger to the orderly conduct of a democratic state.

The climate of violence which has become a familiar part of United States public gatherings—political demonstrations, racial protests, student riots, public displays of mob feelings in many fields — has spread into individual attacks on noted national figures, and thereby endangered the whole political structure which permits the free expression of opinion.

The easy access to firearms enjoyed by any mental defective or political hothead is one of the major causes of the hazard. What adds to the seriousness of the situation is that a series of occurrences tends to create a pattern — each new incident of shooting invites someone to duplicate it. And the perpetrators have only imprisonment, rather than execution, to fear.

Canadians cannot forget that this destructive trend is exhibited in our closest neighbor and national friend. We can only hope that urgent steps will be taken to curb it before it becomes even more deeply established as a way of American life. In our highly integrated world such actions are more than a century out of date.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Seed's Enduring Miracle

The oldest gardener on our country lane was planting his fiftieth vegetable garden today. Soil, weather and crop prospects were the same as in the previous years but they felt different. His shovel seemed heavier, the planting rows longer, the sunshine cooler, the working hours longer. And those helpers who used to work beside him were gone now to another garden far away, as he hoped.

Along with his tools, his seeds and certain memories, he dug and raked and suffered in every bone and muscle, for no good reason that he could think of. But on second thought there were some reasons unmentioned in the garden books and the botanical experts' instructions.

A young man, he reflected, could plant trees, watching them grow until they dwarfed him beneath their shade, and he had planted many, now big enough for the logger's chainsaw, but safe from it for a little while yet, until apartment buildings or shopping centres replaced them with a superior concrete beauty.

An old man, however, unable to await this slow process, could see it accelerated, capsuled and completed in a single year, if he planted vegetables. A cabbage, a beet or a squash went through its full cycle from spring to autumn, from seed to seed-making — a silent, frantic race against time which mother nature always won while never seeming to hurry. That was why he planted vegetables again this spring, having no time to lose.

The Final Secret

He emptied a package of onion seeds into his hand and examined them carefully. Each minute globule of ebony hue was insignificant, seemingly inanimate, apparently as dead as a speck of grit, and yet it contained the final secret which men vainly tried to unlock, being themselves only seeds in the beginning. The mystery of all things lay in his hand and it had cost him only a quarter of a devalued dollar.

The seed package had risen in price by 500 per cent since he planted his first garden long ago but it was still the best bargain on the market, an inexpensive intimation of immortality overlooked by Wordsworth, that eminent non-gardener, but more valid than any poem, if you knew how to read it.

Only the price, not the article itself, had suffered from inflation. The quality of the product, unlike the products of men's machinery, never varied because mother nature, he supposed, was ignorant of modern economics. She had not read Keynes, Mao, Galbraith or Turner and he wondered if they had ever read her printless text book. Not likely. Maybe that explained the failures of modern government— not enough politicians and economists had looked up the genuine authorities or grown vegetables themselves. The successful statesmen, he guessed, were all carnivorous.

Anyhow, none of their policies was as superbly economic as the humblest vegetable. A mere radish, for instance, achieved a growth rate faster than that of Japan without a single percentage point of inflation, an hour's unemployment or a whiff of pollution.

Moreover, its seeds could be stored for years and yet sprout instantly at the first touch of soil and moisture, while even in the sheltered hothouse of Parliament Hill a politician who began to wither could rarely be revived. A lettuce might have no head for figures but its head was edible and delicious, as governments, unfortunately, were not.

. . . capital gains

In short, nature's economic system always worked while men's systems, under any label or ideology, always failed. The Gross National Product was never sufficient to satisfy any nation but the Gross Vegetable Product, unrecorded by the Economic Council, invariably satisfied the toiling gardener, with plenty left over for his idle neighbors.

If nature was more efficient than any machine, the gardener had to admit that he was not. His economic system, to tell the truth, was as inefficient as the political and economic systems. Valuing his time at a dollar an hour (somewhat below the union wages of many less skilled trades) he calculated that he could do about as well on public welfare and save a lot of wear and tear on his crumbling anatomy.

Ah yes, but in a Just Society he knew that he should be paying the state for the privilege of working as nature's inferior journeyman. The state, he suspected, would discover his fraud some day and tax him for it, doubtless retroactively. If Mr. Turner once saw the financial rackets under way in the back yards of Canada, the undeclared income and heaped-up capital gains, he would have the criminals in court before nightfall. Fortunately finance ministers seldom left their dank budgetary basements where nothing but fungoid statistics and rank deficits grew in the dark.

No, the gardener could not claim to be efficient, virtuous or perhaps sane, but he questioned that nations were any better when they plundered the economy of the whole planet, lived on capital and planned to exhaust it at an early date in a curious sacrament called economic growth. If all this was good sound economics he was glad to find himself certifiably mad and sunstruck on a genial May morning while his rational friends labored in stuffy offices to pay their taxes and earn their social status.

Glimmer of Wonderment

He, too, had done the same thing for more years than he cared to remember, had followed his mercenary calling and taken his wages and still, miraculously, was not quite dead, at least to wonderment. For political men spring was the season of budgets and election campaigns; for business men of sales, profits and corporate headaches; for labor union men of strikes, picket lines and demonstrations; for the gardener of black, moist earth, the first green shoots of recurring vitality, the one sure, non-economic miracle.

Society, then, remained unjust since younger men had all the worry and the old gardener had all the fun. But wait a minute. Possibly his work in the earth was useful after all, the only useful work he had ever done. He had helped nature to produce something, however small, that had some real value. It could be eaten. So maybe he had not been an entire liability after all.

Yet that was pretty cold comfort, a pathetic plea, when he recalled his own part in the collective drain on the GNP, and even on other species butchered for his nourishment, the animals he had eaten, the bales of goods he had consumed, the metals, oils and precious cargo of the planet he had squandered — a ghastly procession, a horror of waste that neither he, nor humanity at large, would ever replace.

Well, he would do what he could. He walked to the corner grocery and bought two dozen extra packages of seed. This, to be sure, was an absurd act of penance and remorse, truly the act of a mad man. But even with all his bones and muscles aching he felt better for it. As dusk came he knew that if he were old the seeds in the earth were as young as springtime and already preparing to greet it with a mute little cheer.

GARY CLARKSON

Nobody's Job Is Sure

No one — not teachers or policemen or anyone once thought to occupy a "safe" job — is exempt from the unemployment caused by technological change. This is the clear message of the new Unemployment Insurance Act which went into force this year and now covers 1,200,000 more employees than the old Act.

In contrast to the old Act the new statute is concerned with the worker's future possibilities rather than his past performance. The insurance aspect of the scheme takes into account the odds against the workers being re-absorbed quickly into the work force.

The new Act allows for the federal government's participation when national unemployment exceeds four per cent or when regional unemployment exceeds four per cent and is above the national level by more than one per cent.

Into New Economy

The scheme by which nearly all employees are covered reflects the thinking expressed in the Unemployment Insurance white paper. That document, prepared under the direction of the labor minister, then Mr. Bryce Mackasey, presented the view that Canada was moving into a service economy at the beginning of the "post-industrial era." By various means such as universal coverage, a new actuarial approach and government participation at certain levels of unemployment, the government is trying to get across its message that every employee is vulnerable, and to cope with that fact.

In addition to the alterations mentioned, the benefit structure has been drastically changed. Benefits accrue when an unemployed worker has made eight weekly contributions; benefits are two-thirds of the claimant's weekly insured income during the qualifying weeks and up to seventy-five per cent if there are dependants. Length of benefits depend on the insured's time spent in the labor force. Benefits may not, however, exceed $100 weekly or exceed 51 continuous weeks of payment.

In addition to the provision for "interruption of earnings" as a warrant for a claim there are provisions in the Act for sickness and pregnancy. The pregnancy clause is an obvious attempt to recognize the growing participation of women in the work force. Formerly, employers and employees often lied to the Unemployment Insurance Commission about women employees who were about to have a child in order to obtain benefits during confinement. Pregnant women out of work may now draw benefits for 15 weeks — nine weeks before and six weeks after giving birth.

Universal coverage means that there is no longer a salary ceiling for coverage. The old ceiling was $7800. Anyone who has an identifiable employer is covered and premiums are deducted from the pay cheque. While there is no ceiling on income subject to coverage, benefits may not exceed two-thirds of an income of $150 weekly. Premiums are tax deductible and benefits are taxable.

BRYCE MACKASEY
. . . service economy

Mr. Mackasey, when shepherding the Act through Parliament, estimated that the federal government's contribution would be about $100 millions for every one per cent of national unemployment above four per cent. Government is excluded from making contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund only when national unemployment declines to four per cent.

In the debate on the Act last spring Mr. Mackasey emphasized that the four per cent figure "happens to be a convenient point at which the government's injection of money into the plan is triggered." He stressed that four per cent unemployment was in no way considered an acceptable rate of unemployment by Ottawa. Had the figure been lower, he said, the government's contribution would have to be massive — so massive as to require additional tax revenue.

On this coast the role of the fisherman in the new scheme deserves attention. Under the original Act put into force in 1941 fishermen were considered to be self-employed and hence did not qualify for coverage. It was not until the spring of 1957 that special provision was made in the Act for fishermen. The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union was instrumental in bringing about the change. In the words of an official UIC press release: "Since then this separate fishermen's provision has been continually expanded and adjusted within the Act to keep pace with the changing economy."

Regulations divide fishermen into "year-round" and "other than year-round" categories. On this coast the latter concerns us. Seasonal fishermen must have at least eight weeks of insured employment since the preceding March 31 or since the beginning of their previous benefit period, whichever is later. A seasonal fisherman's benefit can only apply during what used to be called the "seasonal benefit period" — that is, the period from December 1 to the middle of May.

For Fishermen

The term "seasonal benefit" has been, strictly speaking, taken out of unemployment insurance parlance since it is now comparatively easy to establish a claim. In any case, if a seasonal fisherman meets the stipulations he becomes eligible (on a slightly reduced scale compared to non-fishermen) for benefits. Any time spent in fishing means that the worker is placed under the special fishermen's section of the regulations.

Mr. Mackasey, the father of the new Act, praised the new fishermen's provisions, going so far as to say: "We are asserting here for the first time our moral obligation to the fishermen and the realization that they have particular problems and it is the obligation of government to help them. The question in the future will be whether the best way of helping them is through unemployment insurance or through another plan that meets with their approval and it will be our responsibility to bring in an alternative plan to provide stabilization, rationalization and a guaranteed income for our fishing industry."

The last remark about a "guaranteed income" gives away part of the rationale of the new Act. It should be regarded as more than an aid to help the unemployed in a rapidly changing world: it seems to be part of the government's long-range income security plan — part of which was unveiled last September. A guaranteed income is the unspoken purpose of the new Act—a purpose which will perhaps move into prominence as time goes on.

FROM OUR READERS

History

It is amusing to hear Mr. Nixon state that he does not wish to be the first president to lose a war.

Mr. Nixon obviously has a very convenient memory, as any reader of history — and I would commend to them Bruce Hutchison's book "Struggle for the Border" — will quickly see how many times Canada was invaded by American troops and that these invasions were defeated by Canadian and British forces. In the War of 1812 Washington, not London, was burned and the only victory for the Americans in that War was the battle of New Orleans which ended a most unpopular war both in the U.S. — especially the Eastern States — and Britain.

I would also hardly classify the ending of the Korean War as a great victory but a compromise brought about by President Eisenhower who had the foresight to see that such a war could not be won. In spite of this and warnings from Gen. MacArthur — hardly a Communist — the U.S. became involved in Vietnam with the sad situation which exists today. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 318-1680 Poplar Avenue.

Spoiling the Park

Now is the time for all those in Greater Victoria who value the natural amenities of Witty's Beach Park to protest to the Regional Board their decision to open it up for automobile traffic by cutting a road down to a parking lot on the flats.

Besides being a waste of public taxes, it is bad ecology.

Much simpler to have a parking area or areas on the park perimeter with bridle and footpaths down to the beach area. This would also cut out some policing problems.

I am told that the park is to be sacrificed for the convenience of senior citizens. This is bunk. I am one myself and have noticed that some of the regulars are older than I am and walk there. — Geoff Mitchell, Sea Bluff Farm, R.R.1.

Coalition Fate Hangs On 'Grotesque Trio'

Willy Brandt On Tightrope

By STEPHEN ROMER

Barzel congratulates Brandt after losing Bundestag vote

BONN — The only man to keep his sense of humor in the political crisis at Bonn is Franz-Josef Strauss. Shouldering his way out of the Bundestag last week, after his leader Rainer Barzel had lost the vote to install himself as Chancellor in Willy Brandt's place, he was encircled by reporters begging him to tell them what it all meant. "Ho, ho," said the Bavarian ogre. "It means the end of the world!".

In the worst parliamentary uproar since the Federal Republic began, this was a fair joke. One Cologne paper solemnly compared the situation to the Cuba crisis. Parliamentarians wring their hands over the future of the state. The population goes to work with a transistor in its attache' case. A rate of over 5 per cent price inflation — the traditional German nightmare — contributes to the panic.

Curtain to Fall?

"More taxes and higher prices and finally everything will go bang, and the curtain falls for ever" wailed one old man on a Bonn pavement.

While hardly the end of the world as we know it, it is a desperately grave situation. The work of government is blocked, since Brandt and his Social Democrat-Free Democrat coalition failed to get a majority for the budget. The vote on ratification of the Moscow and Warsaw non-aggression treaties on which not only Brandt's Ostpolitik but the entire future course of East-West diplomacy in Europe hangs, lies immediately ahead.

Everything at present hangs on the grotesque trio of FDP deputies who are in various stages of defecting from the government majority: Helms, Kienbaum and Baron Kuhlmann-Stumm.

Helms is cracking up fast and has barricaded himself in his farmhouse, sorting through his bills and in a state of some excitement. Kienbaum, a middle-aged businessman, is being chased all over the country by emissaries from Barzel and Strauss and changes his opinions every time he trips over a reporter. The black baron, at least rich enough to be inflexible, belongs to the nationalist wing of German liberalism and nothing is going to stop him voting the treaties down.

This is a mess in which the truth, while no doubt libellous, matters less than what people believe. Most West German citizens assume that at least two of those three are being bought over by the CDU. This seems to them a means of changing government which brings parliamentary democracy into discredit, and they want a general election. Whether they will get it remains obscure.

Public anger over what is happening in Bonn is, though, overshadowed by the duel between Barzel and Brandt, an even more significant affair. For the first time, West German workers came out on an unofficial and political strike. This was an utterly unexpected development. Even the far Left and the student Marxist groups were taken entirely by surprise; they had assumed that the day when masses of industrial workers could see further than their paypackets was still far off in the mists of the millennium.

Promises, Promises

When Brandt survived the vote on the Chancellorship by two votes, this whole group of workers' representatives and union shop stewards sent him a telegram: "We congratulate you. But we expect more from you now." Nothing more clearly shows the acute difficulty of the SPD position. That hundreds of thousands of workers should spontaneously come out on the streets to show that they regarded Brandt's SPD as 'their' government caught the party off balance.

It looked like — and it was — massive extra-parliamentary pressure on the Bundestag, with the working-class threatening not to recognise what would have been a change within the rules of the constitution.

The SPD government has not in fact kept many of its electoral promises to the workers, with Karl Schiller, the economics minister, cancelling many reforms in the effort to hold down prices. And yet IG Chemie, the chemical workers' union, let its men march for Brandt just after it had accepted a wage increase less than the rate of inflation.

This fierce loyalty to Brandt was simply not anticipated by the SPD itself, and when the Chancellor subsequently appeared on television, he merely thanked his supporters and took care not to suggest that their actions had influenced events.

Burned Records

The workers, and apparently a strong majority of the population at large, are in favour of ratifying the treaties with Poland and the Soviet Union. But their main concern is to defend the first post-war Social Democratic government. The celebrated self-restraint and passivity of the West German trade unionists is becoming a thing of the past, under inflationary pressure. The 'September strikes' of 1969, the first wave of (illegal) unofficial strikes which the Federal Republic had experienced, were followed by the "Files Affair" in which groups of men in the larger factories occupied offices and, in many cases, burned the confidential criminal and the political records kept there. In the last year, Christian Democrat oppostion to the new Bill on works councils led in many factories to the complete elimination of Christian Democrat lists of candidates at the works council elections.

In this steady growth of militancy, largely overlooked by the general public, the threat to defend the Brandt government with the strike weapon is only the latest development.

Brandt is trying to solve two connected but separate problems. In the first place he must get the treaties through, and remove from West Germany the very real threat of international isolation which would afflict the country if the treaties and the Ostpolitik fell.

The second problem, as Brandt sees it, is the whole question of how to govern West Germany with no majority. Here the central obstacle is the Basic Law itself, designed to make dissolutions and intervals of power as rare as possible. Framed in order to avoid the parliamentary weakness of the Weimar Republic, this provision is now nicely defeating its own objects by discrediting the democratic process.

An election can only take place in mid-term if the Chancellor loses a vote of confidence, and even then a great many more formalities must be gone through. Brandt is perfectly well aware that a general election is the only way out in the long run. But he wants to be certain that if he arranges to lose a confidence vote, the CDU-CSU will not slam in another "constructive no-confidence" motion and replace him as Chancellor, which would make an election constitutionally unnecessary.

Loss of Pensions

There is also the squalid fact that a lot of elderly backbenchers lose their full pension rights if they are unseated before a complete Bundestag term has to run to its end. For them, there is democracy but there is one's comfortable retirement too.

So for the sake of the treaties, and of a general election, Brandt sets about the humiliating work of creating a sort of de facto Grand Coalition with the Christian Democrats. He is trying to lure them both into ratifying the treaties, and restraining their lust for instant power if he does arrange to lose a vote of confidence.

As well as a joint declaration on foreign and German policy, Brandt is proposing a common line with Barzel and Strauss on finance and currency questions and on internal security. By this he means, as he said in Essen on May Day, a campaign against left-wingers: "The SPD must have no ideological mix-up with Communist groups, no Popular Front policy, no so-called joint action (with Marxist organizations)." This, though they will not admit it, may have the CDU worried. The sight of the SPD unable to tackle its young leftwingers has been a useful source of political shrapnel.

If there is evenutally an election, Brandt may well win. This is the basic motive for Barzel prevarication. Even the spectacle of a provisional government with CDU participation to prepare the elections — the craziest suggestion now circulating at Bonn — might not persuade the victors to forgive Barzel and Strauss for their tactics. Those two gentlemen would prefer to snatch power by relying on FDP defectors for a quick Bundestag vote rather than to face the electorate.

But the effect on public opinion would be disastrous, and not only on the urban workers. In a small village in the hills, I found a priest blessing two tractors, four cars, 10 bicycles and a child's tricycle. "Even if the Sozis (SPD) get in again, and many people would not want that, there should be an election," he told me. "Everyone who does honest work feels that what is being done at Bonn is morally questionable."

What They've Got We're Getting

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

It piles up; it does pile up. Not only the physical garbage but the moral garbage.

The rats are here, the flies are on the way. Toronto's Medical Officer of Health is concerned for the city's safety. So are the parents of children whose schools and playgrounds are adjacent to the festering heaps.

At City Hall striking outside workers burst into the building, scatter garbage through its halls, return to scatter more when they hear a clean-up has begun, shout insults and obscenities at workers. A stink bomb is thrown at the east tower. So threatening are their actions that police are drawn from all over the city, and school tours of the building are stopped — one of the tours has come all the way from Charlottetown.

* * *

These are actions which, if indulged in by any of the rest of us, would have seen us immediately on a charge before the courts. But there are no arrests.

The unpeaceful demonstrators take out time to shout at a peaceful demonstrator for another cause.

Donald Armstrong is walking quietly with a placard to protest the holding of his son in Don Jail and the Canadian Government's refusal to grant him asylum from the United States. His cause may not be just, but it is his right to present it and he presents it properly; to be abused by bullies.

At the St. Lawrence Centre's Town Hall citizens meet legitimately to discuss Homosexuals — Myth and Reality; and are driven out when a man and woman suddenly spray the hall with antipersonnel gas — something like MACE — causing ear, nose and throat irritation and sending one man to hospital.

At Queen's Park James Allan, Provincial Treasurer from 1958 to 1966, changes sides in the Legislature's Public Accounts Committee to denounce angrily the Ontario government's auditing system and insist that it "needs a big shakeup". If this is true, why did Mr. Allan wait so long to tell us?

A gasoline bomb is thrown at a teacher's home. A meeting of judges, lawyers, police chiefs, law professors and criminologists gathering to discuss, among other things the suggestion that "the ordinary citizen's position is relatively one of total isolation and ignorance of what goes on" in the treatment of offenders in Canada, decides, nevertheless, to keep the press and the public out of all important sections of its conference.

The filth in our parks, we are told, may put them out of full service until mid-summer. And the habit of littering — instilled now for nearly a month in Toronto's children — how long will it take to reverse that?

* * *

Metro and city inside workers threaten strike. The Toronto Transit threatens strike. The CBC — struck and impaired so long now that it is in many minds already an invalid — fails to do its share in telling the public of its dangers.

Taxes rise. Services decline.

This is our city and our province. Has anybody noticed — amid the ragings of the nationalists against economic domination by the United States — how swiftly is narrowing the real gap between the U.S. life that we fear and the Ontario life that we used to love?

Even Zeus Could Goof

RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON — President Nixon finished his somewhat scary speech on Vietnam with an appeal for the support of the people. He deserves it. He is in a most difficult position, and he is, as presidents have become fond of reminding us, the only president we have.

Although the presidency is probably not the vale of agony its propagandists would have us believe, it can at moments like the present put superhuman demands upon the driven men of massive ego who, in the nature of American politics, are the only kind of men likely to become presidents nowadays and for some time to come.

For reasons too debatable to get lost in here, we the people, as the founders called us, have of late come to demand godlike qualities of our presidents. Zeuses all since Harry Truman, they command the all-powerful lightning, and with blind faith we commend our lives to their discretion in its hurling. Why should we not? They occupy the American Olympus atop Pentagon and CIA: If wisdom is not to be found there, then where?

They are also invested with magic and mystery by our indulgence. A word on the telephone and they appear magically in the privacy of our homes. In their happy manifestations, they make our purses to fatten, bringing us tax cuts, faster depreciation, more jobs. When opposed by evil forces, the gravity of their message is lightened by our belief in the power of the presidency. The president's in his White House; all's right with the world.

* * *

Like Jupiter, who could transform himself into bulls, showers of golden coin and lots more besides, the president appears before us in many forms. Now he is the warlike Party Leader, all Billingsgate and balloons; now, presto!, he is the American flag ("ladies and gentlemen, the president of the United States!") appealing to all the people to stand up and place hat or hand on heart.

In granting him those powers we also exact demands. What is pertinent in the present case with Nixon is our demand that the president never make a mistake. This is a latter-day requirement of godhood; Zeus was always making mistakes, which was what made Greece such an interesting place.

Presidents are not allowed mistakes, however. Oh, it's all right, when one is appearing as warlike Party Leader for the Loyal Opposition, to accuse him of making mistakes, but when he transforms himself into the American flag mistakes cease to have existed. "U.S. Closes Ranks Behind President," the papers always say.

* * *

That is also called "supporting the president," and it is the act Nixon requested us all to perform. He is in a bad spot. His policy of "Vietnamization" has turned out badly. It was, in fact, a mistake. Not long ago, when he stood before us as warlike Party Leader, he was telling us that Vietnam would not be an issue in the coming election and that, thanks to "Vietnamization," he could pull the rug out from under anyone foolish enough to try making it an issue.

Now, forbidden by popular delusion to confess a mistake in "Vietnamization," his unhappy choice has been to transform himself — "ladies and gentlemen, the president of the United States!" — and ask us to close ranks behind a policy of more war, this time war by blockade. (Vietblocization?). Considering our insistence upon presidential infallibility, it is hard to see what the president could have given us except more war.

If we were now to give him the kind of support he needs most, which is support of the president's right to humanity, we would do him great mercy. This would mean notifying him that we would not believe him a failed god if he were to come before us and say, "we made a mistake; a vigorous pursuit of the war doesn't work out there in Southeast Asia. I'm not going to make the same mistake again."

* * *

It is unreal, foolish and sentimental, of course. Its mere suggestion sounds anti-Nixon in a crudely sarcastic way. Mistakes! You don't make mistakes when you're president, son! You've got too much information, too much expert advice! Down in Texas the Johnson faithful are still insisting that they did all the right things.

That is probably because evidence of humanity is regarded as a dangerous weakness in presidential politics, by the same people who assure us that Muskie is a sure bet and that Vietnam won't be an issue in 1972. Anyone who urges a candidate to commit deeds of humanity, beyond coddling his dog and observing the marital conventions with a wife — is suspected of malicious intent against the candidate.

It is time to start supporting the president's human right to make mistakes. We should each write Nixon a few comforting words to the effect that we do not expect him to be Zeus and, indeed, that it would be supremely flattering if for once a president would allow us a passing brush with divinity by giving us the chance to forgive.

Saanich Reviewing Its Firearm Ban

Saanich aldermen agreed Monday night to reconsider a ban on the use of firearms to protect crops.

"I'm prepared to eat a large slice of humble pie," commented Ald. William Noel, who suggested council reverse its decision of two weeks ago reaffirming the Firearms Bylaw.

Noel said he had since seen a lot of crop damage and supported a suggestion that police be empowered to issue special permits allowing farmers to shot deer and birds which damage crops.

At present the bylaw allows only the shooting of predatory animals upon the issue of special permits, provided the fish and wildlife authorities concur.

Three farmers attended council to speak in support of the amendment, which also was supported by letters from Vancouver Island Tree Fruits Association and Saanich Fruit Growers Association. Chief constable Robert Peterson also said the bylaw works a hardship on some persons.

Ald. Alan Newberry said the matter needs another look, but he urged the other side of the question also be heard again. Conservationists and persons concerned with noise and safety oppose the use of firearms in the community.

The farmers maintained that deer, pheasant and ducks do so much damage to fruit buds, sprouting vegetables, whole fruit and berries, young hay and vegetables nearly ready for harvest that their livelihood is jeopardized.

Finance and legislative committee will re-examine the bylaw.

Mayor Hugh Curtis returned the matter to council on his own perogative.

Saanich Fruit Growers said deer, taking advantage of dwarf varieties of trees, "do tremendous damage" browsing along the branches.

As many as 17 deer at a time have been counted on a single property, the association said.

"If the green belt is to be preserved farmers must have protection or they will be driven out of business," said the letter.

John Pendray, 4160 Blenkinsop, said pheasants do "untold damage" to potato crops, 50 at a time descending on a field.

He estimated as many as 5,000 ducks at one time can land in a field of clover and wipe out the crop.

"If we are not permitted to protect our crops it will be just one more problem of encroaching population that is making farming impossible," Pendray said.

Peterson said the practice in past years was to be selective about granting permits. Of 25 requests a year fewer than half were granted and they must have satisfied conditions of need, whether the applicant depended on his crop for a living, public safety, responsibility and firearms ability of the applicant and whether other means of protection were available.

PROHIBITS BLANKS

Game shot out of season must also be turned over to a charitable agency for food, the chief said. Police satisfied themselves applicants were not simply trying to skirt conservation laws.

Peterson felt "farming will be a thing of the past" in Saanich if permits are not granted.

He further noted that the bylaw effectively prohibits the use of blank cartridges and air guns.

Mayor Curtis said he thought "a majority of council was in error" when the bylaw was approved.

Ald. Frank Warning suggested council try to remove the deer from the area.

Marten Bolog, 5963 Old West Saanich Road, asked who would pay for deer fences, estimating it would cost $10,000 to protect his farm alone.

'EASY TO SIT'

"It is easy to sit there and put a law in and say you can do nothing about it," he complained.

Last year deer cost him $200-$300 each day of the season in his apple orchard. If the total reaches $5,000 I'm finished," Bolog said.

"They can wipe out a crop overnight," Pendray added. But shooting one or two and bleeding and dressing the carcasses in the field, leaving the entrails on the ground, will effectively deter further molestation, he said.

Administrator John Tribe noted that permits granted recently were illegal, since it had not been noticed the bylaw excluded killing for crop protection.

William Mattick, 5373 Lochside, said "all we are trying to do is grow food for you people and make a living for ourselves." He and a partner paid $100,000 in wages last year, he said, but last fall deer destroyed $3,000 worth of carrots in one field.

In answer to a question by Ald. Leslie Passmore as to why shooting blanks would not serve the purpose of scaring off birds and deer, Mattick said the deterrent is in the carcass or entrails, "like dead crows on a stake."

EASY ACCESS TO ELK, BEAVER

Patricia Bay Highway reconstruction has cured one third of the summer access problem for sun seekers in Beaver and Elk Lake Parks.

Northbound motorists from the more heavily-populated urban parts of the city will still have to make left turns in front of oncoming traffic to reach Elk Lake beaches at the Black Swan and Hamsterly Road.

But those heading from Victoria to Beaver Lake Park can take advantage of the new interchange near Royal Oak Avenue to get from the highway to a new road called Elk Lake Drive, which leads right into the park.

Saanich parks administrator Bert Richman agrees the left turns remaining may still be a hazardous situation at peak traffic times, even though appropriate slots will be painted on the pavement for holding purposes.

For the present he hopes these will be adequate. "But eventually I think we will need a service road inside the park as we start to develop facilities (in the park on Elk Lake). By then, it will be a regional board responsibility," Richman said.

He noted the Saanich lease runs out in four years, at which time it is expected the Capital regional district will assume direct administration of such parks.

Meanwhile there could be some extension of the former highway paralleling Beaver Lake Park — Now named Elk Lake Drive — as a frontage road giving access to the playing fields north of Beaver Lake Park entrance.

Southbound motorists will have no difficulty reaching the three popular park locations, accessible via right turns at Sayward Road or Hamsterly Road for the north end of Elk, and at Haliburton Road for Beaver Lake.

TIPS

The B.C. highways department offers this tip: When heading out from Victoria, people going to Beaver Lake should proceed along the highway to the ramp past the former intersection of Royal Oak Avenue. This will take them to a new section, Royal Oak Drive, where a left turn will carry them on to the new overpass and to the newly-named Elk Lake Drive, where they will make another right turn.

Alternatively, they may go past Elk Lake Drive, proceeding another half mile to Pipeline Road which will take them into the park by way of the "back door."

Revelstoke Protests Kootenay Rail Plans

REVELSTOKE (CP) — The city of Revelstoke has urged the federal government to take steps to ensure that Kootenay coal is shipped to the coast by an all-Canadian route.

Shipment of the coal via the Kootenay and Elk Railway and through the U.S. would compound problems of high unemployment and foreign domination of the economy, the city says in a submission to the government.

The Supreme Court recently quashed a decision of the Canadian Transport Commission that barred construction of the Kootenay and Elk. The federal government now is reviewing the matter.

Revelstoke said the shipping of coal via a foreign railway would endanger many jobs. These include CP Rail employees in B.C. and workers involved in the manufacture of locomotives in Quebec and Ontario and rolling stock in Nova Scotia, the city added.

KELOWNA (CP) — General Mortgage and Housing Corp. has advised city council here its application for $400,000 for an industrial sewage project has been turned down. Use Law Too Much VANCOUVER (CP) — John L. Farris, president of the Canadian Bar Association, told the Vancouver Board of Trade Monday increased labor legislation will not resolve industrial disputes and suggested a joint labor-management council be formed to aid labor relations on a full-time basis.

"There is a tendency today to use law too much," he said. "In a healthy society it should not be necessary to have all disputes revolved by legal processes."

'No Damn Dam'

PENTICTON (CP) — Conservative Erik Nielsen, MP for The Yukon, said Monday night British Columbia residents should make sure "no damn dam is built in B.C. without involvement of the federal government."

Nielsen, speaking to some 150 people at the annual meeting of the Okanagan-Boundary progressive Conservative Association, made his remarks after scoring what he termed "Ottawa's nonsense and lack of responsibility" in the James Bay power development scheme in Quebec and proposals for a major dam on the Fraser River.

Ottawa Blamed

KELOWNA (CP) — Mayor Hilbert Roth Monday accused the federal government of encouraging youths to travel without taking the problems of municipalities into account.

His remarks came during a confrontation with Ted Swanson, regional co-ordinator of the federal hostel program.

"This council strongly supports a hostel," the mayor said, "but we don't like the idea of having a series of flophouses.

"We want the people who are encouraging these young people to travel to be the ones to finance it."

VIEW ROYAL LEADERS APPROVE TOWNSHIP IDEA

View Royal came one step closer to being incorporated as a township Monday night with approval of the proposal by the area's community leaders.

The executive of the View Royal Ratepayers and Community Association, the area's three fire trustees and its representative on the Capital Regional Board supported the proposal from ratepayers that the area be incorporated as a town.

A referendum will be held on the issue and the municipal affairs department will be asked by the fire trustees to incorporate.

The ratepayers association proposed the incorporation move after "a comprehensive study of the advantages and disadvantages of municipal status."

"The study resulted in an overwhelming majority of ratepayers supporting a move to have a referendum put before the people," said a release from the association.

A public meeting preceding the referendum will be held May 30 at 8 p.m. at All Saints Church, in the 200-block Pallisier Ave.

The association describes the basic reason for their proposal as "the growing feeling among View Royal residents that it is mandatory that the district have a property constituted governing body to represent and protect the interests of property owners."

"At present View Royal holds only one vote of a total of 44 votes on the Capital Regional Board."

The man who headed the town study idea, Joe Sutherland, said it is "absolutely essential that there be an assured means of controlling development in View Royal in a manner which the majority of our citizens approve.

"At present our future in View Royal is at the mercy of outside governing bodies. No group can give the area the attention it deserves and control its affairs as well as we will in the future," Sutherland said.

Health Services 'Dog's Breakfast'

A running battle continues between the Greater Victoria school board and the Metropolitan Board of Health over who gets what and how much should be paid for it.

At Monday night's school board meeting, the services the school district receives from the health board were described as "a dog's breakfast" by trustee Peter Bunn, who was one of several trustees who expressed reluctance to have the board pay for something it is not sure it's getting.

The subject came up after receipt of a letter from Esquimalt Ald. Ken Hill, chairman of the health board, in which Hill tells the trustees that he cannot provide a detailed list of the services the school board will receive for the $106,000 they are paying this year to the health board.

Hill said the responsibility for outlining the requirements of school services belongs with the deputy minister of health, not with him.

'COMING TO HEAD'

"It seems things are coming to a head in this matter," board chairman Allan McKinnon said. He said the school board has only a certain amount of money to spend on health services and that the health board does not seem willing to cut back on the services it is offering.

Trustee Harry Graham said it is "outrageous that we can't get a receipt for the services we are getting from the board of health. I am puzzled."

"I'm puzzled too," said McKinnon.

Bunn said he couldn't understand the lack of itemization for the services offered by the health board.

"It's a dog's breakfast and we're only getting about two ladles-full," he said. "And we don't even know what's in the dog's breakfast."

"I suggest it may be worse than that," said McKinnon. "It seems that all we're getting is the leftovers. We pay 35 per cent of their budget and still we're getting only what we can wheedle out of them."

District superintendent A. J. Longmore said he will be meeting soon with Victoria city manager Bill Hooson, who acts as a middleman between the school board and the health board, to discuss the 1972 budget of the health board and the school board's participation in it.

Last month, the board received a letter from Jim Bramley, city comptroller, which said the school board still owed more than $24,000 to the health board for services in 1971.

The negotiations between the two boards and the city have been complicated by a disagreement over the sharing agreement, which was worked out several years ago.

Manpower Repeats Plan For Student Job Placing

Students who will be hustling for jobs for other students this summer and the businessmen they hope will provide them met Monday at the opening of a new Canada Manpower Centre at 614 Yates.

Repeating a format used in 1971 student counsellors at the centre will mount a phone campaign and knock on doors in efforts to place the many university and high school students expected to register for summer employment.

The brief opening ceremony was barely completed Monday before the first registrations were being taken.

Crawford Glew, Vancouver Island district area manager, estimated that 1,800 students would register about 600 or more would be placed through the centre and others would go out "and dig their own jobs."

Tom Newell, 1971 University of Victoria graduate, is Manpower's student summer employment co-ordinator.

Monday he forecast that more students than ever would be looking for jobs, made scarce by labor unrest.

"The construction lockout and the unrest in the forest industry has produced not only a direct shortage of well-paying jobs in these areas but has also given rise to a certain negative psychological effect on business generally," he said.

He felt that students would not be able to earn as much as they once did.

Glew was more optimistic, because he felt that Victoria was "a service-orientated community."

Glew stressed it would be easy for private citizens to get student labor.

He said there is "absolutely no red tape involved if a private citizen has a job for a student. There are no deductions to worry about or anything like that. If there happens to be some gardening work and a person calls in, our staff explains that the provincial minimum wage is $1.50 an hour and we send someone out to work."

Glew explained that 11 Victoria students have been sent overseas under the international student summer employment exchange program. Some of these will be employed as giudes at this year's Olympics in Germany.

Six overseas students, in return, will be placed in jobs here.

The Yates Street centre will continue on a full-time basis when the summer program is completed. It is also used as a placement centre for industrial workers and immigrants. Two students have been given jobs in the immigrant settlement section.

Three Hurt In Crash

One woman is in satisfactory condition in hospital and three other persons were treated and released after a car-truck collision at Admirals and Hallowell at 4:45 p.m. Saturday.

Gail Beck, 21, of 1583 Hillside, is in satisfactory condition at Queen Victoria General Hospital. Treated and released were Nancy Fairburn, 19, of 1451 Denman; Kenneth McLean, 16, of 1207 Wychbury; and Kevin Baker, 16, of 480 Foster.

The driver of the logging truck, Peter Walker of 4202 Bremerton, was not injured.

Schools Won't Offer Hunt Course

Greater Victoria's school trustees — looking for an opportunity to shoot down a proposed course offering training for hunters —had their target taken away from them before they got their chance Monday night.

Several of the trustees were ready to heartily condemn the hunter-training aspect of a course, which was to run at Colquitz Junior High School starting in September, but the department of education beat them to the punch by rejecting the course outright Monday.

However, the board later passed a motion saying it "encourages any schools which offer courses on wildlife and ecology."

CABINET ORDER

A cabinet order released Monday requires new applicants for hunting licences on Vancouver Island to take the government's training program.

The order was passed at last Thursday's cabinet meeting, which also approved the banning of helicopter transportation for hunters into game areas of the province.

A further cabinet order requires that anyone 14 years of age who is applying for his first hunting licence must have completed the government's hunter training examination.

WANT A RED ENSIGN?

OTTAWA (CP) — Want a red ensign to hang on your playroom wall?

If you are a "deserving" individual or organization who wants to display that historic memento — the former Canadian faig — "indoors" you can get one from the public works department.

The information was provided in the Commons Monday by Public Works Minister Jean-Eudes Dube in response to written questions from former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker had asked how many red ensigns were in the possession of the public works department Feb. 15, 1965, when the present maple leaf flag was proclaimed.

He asked how many had been disposed of to organizations and individuals and how many still were on hand.

Mr. Dube said there were 11,616 red ensigns, mostly used and damaged, on hand in his department at the time the maple leaf flag was proclaimed as the "distinctive symbol of this country."

In addition there were about 8,000 in stock in the defence department.

In anticipation of requests for the ensign by organizations and individuals wishing to use them for "indoor display as historic mementoes," a "reasonable number" were preserved.

TOURISTS EXCITED BY IRISH SEARCH, BOMB, BULLETS

BELFAST (Reuter) — Despite the bombs and bullets that keep Northern Ireland ablaze, the tourists keep on coming.

"Of course there aren't as many as there used to be," said Ian Hill of the Northern Ireland Tourist Board.

"Some people seem to come just for thrills. There was one busload of American tourists last year who ran into an army search. They wrote to us afterwards saying how exciting they found it.

"And there were some German tourists recently who complained that their bus was not taking them into Free Derry."

Free Derry is the name used for the Roman Catholic region of Londonderry where the Irish Republican Army is virtually the only law, and where British soldiers and policemen do not go.

"We also got a lot of students coming because Northern Ireland is in the news," Hill said.

Statistics show that Northern Ireland had 775,000 visitors last year. This includes businessmen and people making multiple trips. About 40 per cent of these visitors were with friends or relatives in Northern Ireland.

The comparable figure for 1968, which was the last year before sectarian strife between Protestants and Catholics burst into open violence, was 1,094,000 visitors. Tourist revenue for 1971 was $52 million compared with $72 million for 1968.

The thrill-seeking tourist does not have far to look. Even to get into the headquarters of the Northern Ireland Tourist Board, he must go through strict security checks.

On the streets of Belfast and Londonderry, he can see soldiers crouched in battle positions in doorways while unconcerned housewives amble past.

At least once a day in Belfast he will probably hear a bomb go off.

In an ordinary department store, he may have to pass a checkpoint where a young girl is assigned to peer inside shopping bags to make sure they contain nothing lethal.

Should a tourist break her hand mirror, she will have trouble getting a replacement. Glass is in heavy demand to replace thousands of shattered window panes.

The tourist will have to put up with restaurants closing early and buses disappearing from the roads in early evening.

Not all visitors are thrill seekers. Many head hurriedly for the country, away from the sound of gelignite exploding.

Aluminum Price Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Three large producers joined Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. in lowering published ingot prices, but did not follow Kaiser in boosting actual selling prices.

Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals Co. and Alcan Aluminum, through its U.S. sales unit, lowered prices four cents to 25 cents a pound. Kaiser had taken that step previously.

Industry sources said it was virtually certain that the rest of the U.S. industry would follow. The move to bring published quotations for ingot more in line with market prices also was making headway internationally.

Ingot last listed at 25 cents a pound in May, 1968.

American Metal Climax Inc. says it has raised the price of zinc one cent a pound to 18 cents.

Home Interest Rates Start Upward Swing

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The prime mortgage rate has risen to 9¼ per cent from 9 per cent in Victoria and local financial observers say further increases are likely before the end of the year.

Heavy demand for mortgages plus the generally bullish atmosphere of the federal budget continue to apply pressure on the rates.

Mortgages that qualify under the National Housing Act can still be obtained locally at 9 per cent, up from 8¾ during the winter months.

Banks and trust companies are generally offering mortgages at 9¼ per cent based on 65 to 70 per cent of the vaue of a new home.

Rates can be higher for older homes or new homes on the fringes of urban development.

UPWARD THRUST

The pressure on mortgage rates is a reflection of the universal upward thrust of interest rates during the second quarter this year.

Local banks report tremendous pressure on the prime lending rate of 6 per cent in view of the heavy demand. To obtain funds, banks are offering virtually six per cent to investors on term deposits.

Said one bank manager: "Something's got to give. I wouldn't be surprised to see the prime lending rate go up."

The federal budget is adding to the pressure because of the clear signal to companies to expand in an effort to provide jobs. The increase demand for expansion capital is expected to be felt during the next four months.

The Victoria mortgage demand is reported to be brisk, reflecting the increased housing starts on the Island during the first quarter of this year.

The swing to industrial development may reduce demand from residential and commercial mortgages at year's end and thus limit the upward pressure on NHA rate.

But locally there is no evidence of reduced demand and nobody is talking in terms of rate reductions.

The thrust of all interest rates for the next few months will definitely be up.

Talent Bidders Getting in Line

QUEBEC (CP) — Howard Casper, the Philadelphia lawyer credited with negotiating a $750,000 long-term contract for goalie Bernie Parent, arrived here late Monday night and immediately began a series of meetings with players and prospective franchise bidders for the World Hockey Association.

Parent earlier signed the giant contract with the now-defunct Miami Screaming Eagles.

Casper is believed to be trying to renegotiate Parent's contract with any of three possible bidders.

The occasion for the lawyer's visit is the two-day meeting of the WHA board of trustees which ends today.

WAITING FOR TALKS

On hand to greet Casper were at least four players with National Hockey League experience. All are believed interested in moving to the new league which is scheduled to begin play this fall.

The players were Denis Dupere of Toronto Maple Leafs, Dick Sarazzin, Philadelphia Flyers; Gord Labossiere asd defenceman Ralph MacSweyn.

Labossiere and MacSweyn spent most of last season in the American Hockey League with Cleveland Barons and Richmond Robins respectively.

Late - arrivals were three other members of the Flyers, young left winger Bob Kelly, forward Bill Flett and defenceman Joe Watson. Also on hand, to begin what looked like all-night negotiations, was defenceman Al Hamilton of Buffalo Sabres.

10 TEAMS READY

Earlier Monday, Gary Davidson, WHA president, said the league had solidified at 10 teams after the Quebec City entry, Les Nordiques, gave assurances they would begin in 1972.

Earlier reports indicated the Quebec entry might seek a one-year delay to regroup financially.

'L'es Nordiques will be in for 1972, and at this time we will go with 10 teams," Davidson said. "Miami is definitely out, while another group from Calgary may reapply."

Miami and Calgary failed to post performance bonds of $100,000 each, Miami through lack of an arena and Calgary through the illness of one of the original bidders.

FOUR CANADIAN CITIES

In addition to Quebec City, Edmonton, Ottawa, and Winnipeg are listed as the Canadian starters, while New York, Houston, New England, Los Angeles, Minnesota and Chicago will be the United States entries.

Casper was expected to meet a group of Philadelphia businessmen with an eye to attaining a franchise for that city.

Davidson said the new league considered must also consider the possibility of bids from Salt Lake City, Kansas City and Montreal.

They'll Remember Vaughan For Winning This One

Vaughan Trapp on Sunday moved well ahead of the field in golf earnings on the Island, and now he's going to leave town with the loot. More important, a lot more respect.

Nobody's complaining, and everyone is wishing him well. And Trapp deserves every penny of the $300 he got for defeating Al Zimmerman at the 37th hole at Colwood in the Times island final.

Besides now he will be able to tell his new students just what it is like to play and win "the longest tournament of my life." Trapp takes up a teaching position at an indoor golf school in Vancouver next week.

Still, if it was Trapp's third victory for a while he must have wondered if it was in the cards for him to be on top at the finish.

This was a scheduled 36-hole final for the match-play title, oldest of its type in Canada, and with a vintage player as one of the central figures, the sentimentalists were out in good force.

The interesting match-up was that Zimmerman, the once-retired former tour winner, was 63 years of age, and who wouldn't root for a veteran against a handsome 28-year-old assistant pro, who could hit the ball a mile, and besides, had his own father, Paul Trapp, as his teaching pro?

It was a sure-fire recipe for side-taking. The over 50s had their champion in Zimmerman, who had knocked off a couple of promising youngsters on his way to the final; and proponents of junior development were looking to Trapp to make certain that all wasn't wrong with their training program.

Neither disappointed, and both were nice and good sports through it all.

Al's Morning Round Something Else

If partisanship favored Zimmerman, he really didn't need the help through the morning round. He had an approximate 68, which is two under, and if that isn't good golf try this. The only hole Trapp won was the 14th, and it took an eagle three to do it. Zimmerman was five up.

After lunch, though, things changed. Trapp seemingly was unworried, even after Zimmerman had knocked in a 21-foot putt for a birdie four on the par five 23rd.

That put Zimmerman six up with only 13 to play and might have unnerved most golfers. Not Trapp. He could wait. Rather it was Zimmerman who showed the first signs of becoming unstuck. He missed the green with his second on the next hole, caught the bunker, and quickly Trapp gained back a hole.

Then suddenly, and surprisingly, through the next eight holes it was Zimmerman who was caught in the pressure vice, and feeling it. The tide had turned.

If play may have been slightly erratic at times, both players did show their professional talents when they had to.

For Trapp, the big shot was on the 30th. He exploded from a jungle of grass behind the green to within six feet of the hole, conceded Zimmerman a par, and then tapped his ball into the cup. For him, it may have been the match saver.

For Trapp, Every Match Went Limit

Zimmerman wasn't all done either after getting behind by missing a short putt at 33. He birdied 35 from 14 feet, and then on 36 was positively spectacular after he had misfired on his second shot and his ball had rolled halfway down the path towards the pro shop.

He chipped back, and then sunk his putt for a remarkable par four. Trapp, five feet from the stick, with his second, may have been shaken. His birdie try hung on the lip of the cup, but refused to drop.

"Thirty-six holes isn't enough," said an obviously weary Zimmerman as he trudged down the hill to the 37th tee.

And hole No. 37 proved to be one too many. Because Trapp, who had been only two over par for the afternoon round was now the master. After all, every match he had played and won during the tournament had gone into the final hole, or extra holes, and now here he was again.

Faced with a three-foot putt for a win after both players had gone over the green with their seconds, he calmly knocked the ball into the cup.

For him that had to be the biggest par of the day, even the tournament.

Now, he's off to Vancouver, and a new position. Zimmerman said Vaughan should do well. But before Trapp played on Sunday he had another view.

"I would like to have people say 'remember how Vaughan used to play'."

After Sunday, they will.

Malloy-driven car demolished in spectacular crash

Malloy 'Critical'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mark Donahue, looking for some extra speed to match Bobby Unser's weekend performance, worked his Roger Penske McLaren up to 190.114 miles per hour Monday and appeared far from satisfied.

"We are still searching for more zip," he said.

Though it was Donahue's best effort in two weeks of practice it still was more than five miles off Unser's top lap of 195.678 mph and his four-lap 195.960 qualifying average of Sunday.

Unless somebody comes up with a miracle, the 38-year-old speedster from Albuquerque, N.M., has the pole position locked up for the 56th running of the Indy 500 May 27.

Unser took the day off to rest on his laurels.

Peter Revson, who held the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's old one and four-lap marks of 179.354 and 178.696 mph worked with his British Team McLaren car, a machine almost identical to the one Donohue is driving, but didn't reach the 191.123 he had recorded in practice last week.

Twelve drivers made the lineup Sunday, including 1969 winner Mario Andretti; Joe Leonard, the reigning USAC driving champion; second-generation driver Gary Bettenhausen and Art Pollard of Medford, Oregon.

Meanwhile, Jim Mallo of Denver, Colorado, remained unconscious and in critical condition Monday night following a crash during practice on Sunday.

Malloy, who won the Daffodil Cup at Victoria's Western Seedway in 1964 while campaigning in the Canadian-American Modified Racing Association, suffered extensive injuries in the smashup. His Eagle-Offenhouser, built by former Victorian Grant King, veered into the infield and came back across the track to crash into the outside wall.

The crash occurred before Sunday's start of qualifications.

Malloy, 36, was pinned in the car for about 30 minutes and was taken to hospital with broken legs and hips, a broken arm, and second-degree burns on the face, left hand and back.

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Bob's Case: Can't Win For Losing

By The Associated Press

"I've been pitching good. It's just that I haven't been winning," Bob Gibson understated. "And winning is what it's all about."

Gibson, the St. Louis Cardinals flame-throwing right-hander, has been getting most of the heat this season. He has yet to record his first victory of the season to counteract the five defeats he has suffered.

Most of the time it has been just one or two pitches that have made the difference. On Monday night it was one he threw to Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente, who walloped it over the right field fence for a three-run home and the Pirates' 4-1 victory.

In other National League action, Philadelphia Phillies blanked Chicago Cubs 4-0, Houston Astros bombed Atlanta Braves 8-2, New York Mets defeated Montreal Expos 5-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers nipped San Diego Padres 2-1.

ELLIS GETS WIN

Gibson had worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth inning before giving up a lead-off single to Dave Cash in the seventh. Vic Davalillo dumped a sacrifice bunt down the third base line and was safe when Joe Torre threw the ball away, setting up Clemente's second homer of the year that gave the victory to route-going Dock Ellis, who scattered five hits for his fourth victory.

Woodie Fryman tossed a six-hitter for the Phillies and got some long-ball help from Mike Anderson and Willie Montanez, who hit home runs for a 2-0 lead, before Fryman singled in two runs of his own to down the Cubs.

Anderson, a rookie who clouted 36 homers in the Pacific Coast League, opened up against Ferguson Jenkins in the fifth inning for the only run Philadelphia needed.

In the seventh, Montanez unloaded.

METS ARE HOT

The Astros, remaining within a game of the first-place Dodgers in the National League West, bunched three infield hits, a bases-loaded walk by Roger Metzger and second baseman Felix Millan's throwing error into a three-run third inning that carried them past Atlanta.

Jim Fregosi's three-run homer broke an eighth inning tie with Montreal and powered the Mets, first by three games in the East, to their fourth victory in a row and 17th in 22 games. Tommie Agee also homered for the Mets and Jon Matlack, with ninth-inning relief help, picked up his fourth victory without a defeat.

In the American League, Baltimore Orioles nipped Detroit Tigers 3-2, Chicago White Sox edged Minnesota Twins 4-3, Oakland Athletics downed California Angels 2-1, and Kansas City Royals shaded Texas Rangers, 5-4.

Wakeham's Best Offer A One-Way Ferry Ticket

He moved to his new Vancouver golf post on Monday evening, so this day is Vaughan Trapp's first as the reigning, non-resident match-play champion of Vancouver Island.

He was a resident when he made his move Sunday at Royal Colwood, ascending the throne for a third time with the help of friendly waves from branches, big tee shots, strong putting and an ability to scramble back from trouble created by over-powering approaches.

Those were some of the circumstances that allowed Trapp to strike back from a six-hole deficit, with 13 to go, and defeat Al Zimmerman on the 37th hole in the Times Island Open final.

Some will be quick to suggest that Zimmerman's 63 years and the long day also were plus factors that favored Trapp, a healthy and husky 28. Zimmerman admits he did tire, but refuses to see that as the reason he lost.

"Don't take anything away from Vaughan," said Zimmerman. "He made some clutch shots when he had to, and he wasn't missing many of those short tough putts.

"Still, give me a six-hole lead with 13 to play any time . . ."

★ ★ ★

Zimmerman feels any pro worth his salt shouldn't lose with such an advantage. He did, and you have to look in three directions for the reasons . . . at Zimmerman, at Trapp and at luck.

Trapp's magnificent recovery from deep rough in the pit behind the 30th (par-four 12th) salvaged an important half and turned the match around. Zimmerman's prominent lapses were short putts that he missed on the 26th, the 29th and the 33rd, and the approach shot that he unexpectedly dropped into the water hazard on the 31st.

Those individual achievements weren't enough to wipe out the advantage that Zimmerman enjoyed at one stage. So the way the ball bounced also had to be a determining factor.

On the 22nd, 28th and 34th holes, Trapp-fired tee shots flirted with the waving branches of fairway-guarding trees. Each time, the balls bounced into safe positions . . . On the green instead of a trap on the 22nd, and on the fairways instead of trouble on the 28th and 34th.

On the same fateful 28th, it was obvious that such bounces were not to be enjoyed by Zimmerman.

Zimmerman's drive off the 28th tee played a shade too tight to the right. With his approach to the green partially cut off, Zimmerman was forced to play a slice. Using a driver off the fairway, he appeared to have executed the shot perfectly.

Normally, the ball can be expected to bounce and roll to the right. Zimmerman's effort, however, darted sharp left and into a trap.

★ ★ ★

This isn't meant to detract from Trapp's triumph. He unleashed several prodigious drives, but also happened to be plagued with an abundance of power on some of his approaches. Specifically, on the 30th, 34th, 35th and the 37th.

It wasn't a case of over-clubbing. Vaughan felt it was the transition "from my winter to summer game."

"I used short irons that I never took out before on some of those holes," explained Trapp. "But I hit everything smack in the centre of the club head, and the balls just kept soaring right over the sticks. I couldn't believe it."

Zimmerman, of course, also caught Trapp's eye, especially after the old master checked in with a sub-par round in the morning. Al scored an approximate 69, or 68 . . . depending on how you conceded him a final putt for victory on the fifth hole.

"I haven't seen anyone play golf like that since I left England," said Trapp. "He runs everything right at the hole. It's beautiful to watch . . . if you're not the one being scared by the shot."

Trapp earned the proper praise from Zimmerman, and a few selected words from Bill Wakeham, the Cowichan pro who lost that barn-burning semi-final to Vaughan on the 36th hole at Oak Bay the previous weekend.

"Al and I both got cheques here today," Wakeham said to Trapp at the prize presentation. "If we each give you a dollar, that will buy your ferry ticket to Vancouver . . . One way!"

★ ★ ★

SHORT CHIPS: Dr. George Bigelow added to his laurels Sunday as the district's leading hole-in-one shooter, among active players . . . Playing in a foursome with Max Yates, Malcolm McKay and Alec McCabe, Bigelow counted career ace No. 16 on Oak Bay's second hole . . . Which is a nice way to launch a trip . . . Same four, along with Al Vey, left Monday for a golfing holiday to Great Britain . . . Also counting an ace at the weekend was Cleland (Sam) Reichart, who scored on Gorge Vale's 10th while playing with Doug Cole, Len MacDonald and Norm Cain . . . Frank Watkins did the honors on Cedar Hill's 12th while playing with George Harper and John Baker . . . Uplands' George Goy was accused of scoring three holes-in-one . . . Teeing off on the third, George plunked the ball into the cup on the fifth green . . .

Bruce McFarlane and Ray Cranston, both scoring identical net rounds of 67-66—133, finished in a tie and will play off next Saturday for the Todd Cup at Oak Bay . . . Ancient ball-hawks are being hailed again by Leo Derman . . . The annual tournament for pre-war caddies will be played at Gorge Vale June 16 . . . Rob Ferguson plans to retain his amateur status for the two-year limit while he works for Paul Trapp in the Oak Bay pro shop . . . He'll replace Vaughan . . . Jim McMillan and Diana Bennett combined for a net 61 to win a mixed two-ball tournament at Cedar Hill . . .

FACING surgery prospects on knees for fourth time is Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr, National Hockey League's most valuable player. Orr is scheduled to have cartilage removed in June.

Fyvie, Cowie Top Qualifying Trials

Three women and two men advanced to provincial roll-offs in Canadian Tenpin Federation competition May 28 in Nanaimo by rolling high scratch and handicap series in regional eliminations Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Provincial winners will gain berths in the national finals at Montreal during 1973 and a chance to win a spot in the world tenpin championships at Bogota, Colombia, the same year.

Scratch bowlers rolled 10 games while handicap keglers tossed six during the regionals.

Marie Fyvie topped women's scratch entries with 1,823 total while Charlie Cowie, who also rolled the high single of 266, captured the men's scratch event with 2,031.

Measure of Revenge

St. Michael's University School gained a measure of revenge Saturday for 14 years of cricket humiliation by Shawnigan Lake Boys' School rivals.

University did it by one run in the final over of the day — with only two minutes to spare.

During an Independent School Cricket League match in Victoria, Jim Kwock scored 27 runs and Shawnigan declared at 96 runs for eight wickets.

Mike Throne, the University School captain, took five wickets for 39 runs in a brilliant bowling stint and topped batsmen with 41 runs as the Victoria side counted 97 for seven.

BUILDERS 'FED UP' WITH SYSTEM

Construction firms are fed up with the "costly and stupid system" of strikes and lock-outs to solve labor disputes, Construction Labor Relations Association spokesman George Wheaton said in Victoria today.

He sail the dispute which led to the province-wide strike-lockout of construction workers could be resolved quickly with third-party intervention.

The dispute has halted $500 million of construction projects since April 28, putting 30,000 men out of work.

"This could last for several weeks or months and there is no prospect of a general settlement in sight," Wheaton said.

"It is frustrating because there are no issues which could not be resolved quickly," he said.

"There is very real danger than some small firms may go bankrupt."

Wheaton said his organization was determined to find some other solution to solving labor disputes than strikes and lockouts every two years.

REPEATS PROPOSAL

He repeated a CLRA proposal that the strike-lockout be halted and negotiations resume for a 30-day period, to be followed by arbitration board hearings and, if the issue is not resolved, by binding arbitration.

The construction unions have rejected this approach because they object to binding arbitration and say board hearings would take a long time and there might not be full retroactive pay when the new contract is signed.

Wheaton said only partial retroactive pay was awarded in 1970 and this was the right approach as otherwise the unions would be encouraged to let the dispute drag on for many months. In addition, with the losses of the strike-lockout, companies could not afford full retroactive pay awards, he said.

SETTLEMENT CLOSE

He said the main stumbling block to a settlement is the demand by construction unions for a reduction in the work week from 37½ hours to 35 hours.

As soon as that was settled then an agreement could be reached on wages.

"While we are close to settlements with some unions there is absolutely no prospect of a general settlement. We have an impasse and it would seem that neither side is likely to change its position," Wheaton said.

He said despite about a dozen defectors, the lockout was effective in all major construction projects among the CLRA's 850 firms. Legal action would be taken against defectors just as it was in 1970, he said.

Injunctions sought by unions to end the lockout was dismissed as:"Nothing more than legal harassment and as such will not contribute anything to settling the dispute."

Same Legislation—Different Action

By The Canadian Press

Bills of rights, designed to protect the citizen from the power of the state at the provincial level, came up in two legislatures Monday—with differing results.

Under the Alberta Bill of Rights, presented at Edmonton for second reading, approval in principle, the powers of the house to enact laws that would abrogate, abridge or infringe on six basic rights and freedoms will be limited.

The bill, described by Premier Peter Lougheed as the "first and only provincial bill of its kind," will be held over until the fall sitting to allow interested persons to make submissions.

Meanwhile, in the Nova Scotia legislature, which prorogued Monday after the longest session in almost 60 years, an opposition Bill of Rights, patterned after the one in Alberta, was voted down shortly before the session ended.

Attorney-General Leonard Pace said the "scope" of the Nova Scotia measure was unacceptable but the opposition predicted the government would introduce similar legislation at the next session.

Mr. Lougheed said the Canadian Bill of Rights already provides for the protection of certain rights and freedoms but is limited to the federal sphere. The Alberta bill would cover property and civil rights, which are areas of provincial responsibility.

Mr. Lougheed said the bill does not prevent the government from depriving persons of their fundamental rights—"it can still do anything it wants to"—but because of the new law government will be "cautious and careful" in passing legislation contrary to it.

This could be "embarrassing and inconvenient for governments" but the rights of the individual need protection when almost "every facet of or life is influenced by government law or regulation."

Legislation was being reviewed to see if any existing acts were contrary to the bill.

The bill guarantees the right to liberty, security of the person and enjoyment of property and the right not to be deprived of these things except by due process of law.

It wold guarantee the right to equality before the law and protection of the law and freedom of religion, speech, assembly and association and the press.

In other legislatures

Halifax—The session that ended saw approval of 130 bills, including measures to increase taxes, establish a department of the environment and update and consolidate labor laws. A bill to establish a centre for the dissemination of government information was passed.

The environmental bill was considered so stringent it will be studied by a select committee of the house before being enacted.

Fredericton—Among bills to be introduced is the Statutes Revision Act to require consolidation of provincial laws and the publishing of them in both English and French, the province's two official languages.

Justice Minister John Baxter said the translation of all statutes into French and a general revision of the law books are expected to be finished by late 1973.

Joint Communion Opposed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Anglican dioces of Huron has been asked to go on record as opposing intercommunion among the Anglican, United and Christian Disciples of Christ churches "until there is a statement of matters on faith and order acceptable to all three churches."

A resolution to this affect was approved Monday by delegates to the 113th session of the synod. The intercommunion would mutually recognize each other's ministers as equals.

The motion, which will be forwarded to the national executive council of the church, is the first statement on the proposals from an Anglican diocese in Canada and puts the country's second-largest diocese on record as opposing recommendations described at the time of their passage as "a great break through."

The proposal on intercommunion and mutual recognition was passed by the general commission on church union at a meeting in Windsor, Ont., in December.

Yearly Elections 'Give Continuity'

A suggestion that local councils dispense with annual elections in favor of two or three-year terms would be "too dangerous," according to a Saanich business leader.

Joe Despot, president of Saanich Chamber of Commerce, was commenting on a request by the Union of B.C. Municipalities presented Monday night at Saanich council meeting.

Despot said he preferred annual elections because they protect continuity of policy by overlapping the terms of council members who serve two years each.

The system guarantees at least half the council will be experienced at any given time, he said.

Electing the whole council at the same time, whether for two-year or three-year terms, would be "too dangerous" because that "could bring in a complete new slate without experience," Despot said.

Councils were invited by the UBCM to indicate preference for one of three alternatives: to leave the system as it is, to have two-year terms for which all members of council would be elected at the same time, or three-year terms with all elected together.

The subject has been discussed at length by the UBCM executive.

It was suggested the councils also consider the alternatives for regional district elections.

Saanich council referred the subject to its finance and legislative committee for study after Ald. Edith Gunning said the whole matter required more consideration than council could devote in one night.

Others commenting today included John C. Cox, president of Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association, and Barrie Goult, president of Gordon Head Ratepayers' Association.

"My first reaction is that three years between elections is too long, memory being what it is," Cox said.

He said he could not make more constructive criticism without studying the question, which he felt might be covered in a 1967 centennial report prepared for Richmond municipal council. This, said Cox, is "the only constructive look at local government in recent years."

Goult said he wanted to discuss the matter with other members of his executive before speaking for the association.

Inflation Would Be Tax-Deductible, Stanfield Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Inflation would become a personal income tax deduction under a government headed by Robert Stanfield.

The man who hopes to be prime minister after the next election — whenever that is — said this in the Commons and added that he would increase old-age pensions by nearly $15 a month.

The election promises were delivered by the Conservative leader during an attack on the budget delivered by Finance Minister John Turner a week ago.

Mr. Stanfield proposed a new taxation system under which individual taxpayers could compensate for increases in the cost of living. He charged that the budget did nothing about unemployment, gave little to pensioners and increased the load on individual taxpayers.

Later, a non-confidence motion proposed by the New Democratic Party, saying the government should have reduced personal income taxes in the budget, was swamped in a formal vote.

CHARGES BIAS

NDP Leader David Lewis said the government is biased in favor of corporations, which had reaped the only real benefits in the budget.

The NDP motion was sunk 158 to 31. Liberals and Conservatives voted against and Social Credit supported the NDP.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is Liberal 148, Conservative 72, New Democrat 25, Social Credit 13, Independent-Liberal 1, Independent 2, vacant 3.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, a former finance minister, argued that all parties should support the budget's "dramatic tax reductions" for manufacturing industries.

He said they would help Canadian manufacturers and processors to produce more cheaply and efficiently to meet international competition at home and abroad.

The budget proposes to reduce the corporation tax rate for manufacturing industries to 40 per cent from 49 per cent. It also increases the basic old-age pension by $2.88 this year — under a cost-of-living rider — and increases old age supplementary payments by $15 for single persons and $30 for married couples. The supplements go only to pensioners with little or no outside income.

Both Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Lewis said the $2.88 increase was not enough.

Mr. Lewis called it an insult and Mr. Stanfield said "I have no hesitation in saying that the government I expect to lead shortly" would increase the basic $80 pension by nearly $15 a month.

Mr. Stanfield proposed that individual income tax should be reduced by the amount the cost of living increased in the previous 12 months.

Using 1971 as a base year, he said that if the cost of living in any year increased by 10 per cent above 1971, then that percentage would be deducted from the individual taxable income.

"As the leader of a government," he would implement the proposal fully as of Jan. 1, 1973.

The cost-of-living increases used for the calculation would be based on a comparison between the consumer-price index for the 12 months ending Sept. 30, 1972, and the 12 months ending Sept. 30, 1971.

For the balance of 1972 there would be an interim arrangement.

BASED ON REAL INCOME

Mr. Stanfield said that under his system taxpayers would not have to pay more tax simply because their income and the cost of living rose at the same rate. Taxation would be on the basis of real income.

At the same time the government would be prevented from having inflation — as represented by cost-of-living increases — from doing its dirty work in collecting increased taxes.

Under the graduated taxation rate, the higher the income the higher the tax rate.

Mr. Stanfield said if inflation grows five per cent in a year government revenues grow considerably more than five per cent.

"As the individual citizen gets poor, this government grows rich."

He said if the government needed a larger share of personal income to finance its operations it would have to come before Parliament for it under his system.

Outside the House he said he agrees that his proposal would help the middle-income group more than those on lower incomes. But there could be tax rate changes to compensate for that.

Mr. Stanfield said he welcomes the government tax measures, as far as they go. But they should be accompanied by personal-income-tax reductions.

He said the budget measures are virtually useless for new industry and provided little encouragement to Canadians to invest in Canadian enterprises, especially risk enterprises.

Mr. Sharp said an income-tax reduction would not be the most effective way of creating new jobs. Consumer demand in Canada was growing steadily and substantially and did not require special stimulus.

Moreover, consumers spent their money both on imported and domestically-produced goods. Tax cuts for individuals would result in a substantial leakage of their spending into imports.

What was needed were further efforts by Canadian manufacturers and processors to produce more cheaply and more efficiently to meet competition from imports at home and exports abroad.

Unions must not seek to reap the benefits of the corporation tax reductions through increased wages and corporations must not use them to increase earnings and dividends, he said.

Mr. Lewis said the government contention that the corporation tax reduction is the answer to unemployment was arrant rubbish.

The way to help employment was to reduce taxes so the consumer could buy more Canadian goods.

Conservative and Liberal governments over the years had progressively put a greater load on the individual taxpayer while corporations paid less and less of the total government revenues.

He said under Mr. Turner's budget individuals would pay 49.9 per cent of government revenues while corporatiins would pay but 12.2 per cent. The remaining revenues would come from such things as excise and sales taxes, which consumers paid in the end.

Big business was getting a free ride, contributing almost the same percentage of government revenues as it received in government expenditures in terms of grants and give-aways.

The individual taxpayer was carrying the load while nearly half the corporations in the country were able to use loopholes to pay no income tax at all.

Buried Power Draws Single Bid

Tenders for construction of the only underground section planned for a new Colquitz River high tension electric transmission line have been closed by B.C. Hydro.

One bid was submitted for the job, an offer from Canada Wire and Cable Co. Ltd., of Vancouver, for $250,000. No contract has been awarded, Hydro said.

CONTROVERSY

The public utility proposes to string overhead lines from Hector Road — Goward substation — along much of the Colquitz River Basin, where a continuing program of beautification is being carried out by Saanich.

That section of nearly 4½ miles is designed to be suspended on 90-foot steel standards and has been a subject of controversy between citizens, Saanich council and the Hydro authority.

The southern end of the line covering a distance of 7,000 feet from about the Saanich-city of Victoria boundary of north Douglas will be buried beneath the street and into its destination at Horsey substation on Summit Street.

Purpose of the project is to increase the capacity of Horsey substation and enable it to supply the expected Victoria electric load growth.

It seems unlikely that the project will be finished before sometime in 1973.

Saanich Advisory Planning Commission chairman Gordon Denford maintains the higher capital cost of placing the line underground for its whole length is outweighed by the benefits that would accrue to the public as a result.

Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum, who said this cost would be about $1.15 million, suggested the municipality take advantage of new provincial legislation enabling underground power lines to be financed.

The arrangement divides construction costs equally between the municipality, Hydro and the provincial government, but Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis feels one-third is "inordinately high" as the local share.

MORE NEEDED

He also feels the region should consider the advisability of burying transmission lines, not just the individual areas through which they must pass.

He points out that as the capital region grows the need for additional high tension lines will be greater and will involve more individual jurisdictions.

Although it is at present the problem of Saanich, overhead transmission towers could become a problem in Victoria east of Horsey substation and in the Victoria-Oak Bay area toward University of Victoria, Curtis said.

"I rather hope that at least the core part of the region . . . will consider cost-sharing . . . as more people come to realize there will be more of these and they will see the importance of stopping them at the Colquitz."

By this time in the 20th century technology should have found a better way than putting up steel towers, wooden poles and festoons of electric lines, the mayor felt.

DIAZINON SPRAYING of city trees, such as that carried out by parks department employee George Koning (above) has been criticized by Dave Foster, of 1733 Bank. Foster claims the spraying is responsible for the disappearance of many species of song birds in the Victoria area. Parks administrator Cliff Bate says that the chemical — despite the fact that it is known to be toxic to fish — is on the recommended list for fruit tree spraying. Some biologists also feel that the substance is harmful to birds.

Second Award For Author

A Victoria resident has been awarded the Canadian Booksellers Association book award for 1971-72.

Mrs. Alice Munro received the $1,000 award for her novel, Lives of Girls and Women, published by McGraw-Hill Ryerson.

Mrs. Munro's earlier book Dance of the Happy Shades, a collection of short stories, won the 1968 Governor-General's Award.

Naturalist Seeks Halt To Bug Spraying by City

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

A director of the Victoria Natural History Society has urged the city to drop its pesticide spraying program and to follow Saanich and Oak Bay examples.

David Stirling said the two municipalities don't have a pesticide program and only spray trees for insect control on rare occasions.

This was confirmed by Stan Bell, Oak Bay works superintendent, and Bert Richman, Saanich parks administrator.

★ ★ ★

Stirling's appeal follows an increasing number of complaints that the city's pesticide program for trees and shrubs is responsible for the disappearance of many species of song birds in the Victoria area.

Dave Foster, of 1733 Bank, a concerned citizen, said he use to see many species of birds around his home, but in the last few years there has been none around.

Mike Zacharty, boulevard superintendent, said the chemical spray known as Diazinon is on the recommended list issued by the department of agriculture.

The spray is used on fruit trees, but government biologists say it is toxic to fish. They believe it is harmful to birds.

He said the city has sprayed about 2,000 trees to control aphids and mites. These include may and maple trees.

"We would spray the larger trees, but we haven't got the equipment," he said.

Saanich park administrator Richman said he doesn't believe in using pesticides.

"We use pesticides at times to control caterpillars and the Oak leaf looper," he said. "But we only do this in answer to complaints."

"We have mites and aphids on our trees — insects are necessary," he added. I have enough experience with pesticides. Once you destroy the balance of nature, you complicate things."

He said an abnormal infestation of mites or aphids one year is usually controlled by nature the following year.

★ ★ ★

Oak Bay work superintendent Bell said: "I don't think we have sprayed a tree this year. "We rarely use pesticides unless we get a complaint."

Stirling said the city parks department will have a hard time convincing him that the trees in Victoria are more susceptible to insects than those in Oak Bay or Saanich.

"This is also an unnecessary expense," he said. "It's the taxpayers who have to pay the shot. In return we reap a sterile environment."

He said the city is spraying as a matter of habit.

Rory Finnegan, B.C. fish and wildlife biologist, said "pesticides should be treated as ecological dynamite."

"They should be used only when absolutely necessary," he said.

Construction Lockout Threatens Bamberton

Ocean Cement's cement manufacturing plant in Bamberton may have to shut down production, but not shipping, if the construction industry lockout continues beyond three to four weeks, manager Jack Wintemute said Monday.

He said the company produces approximately 2,000 tons of cement a day and will run out of space to store it with shipping down "quite considerably for this time of year" because of the contractors lockout.

He said it is difficult to say how many men might be affected by a production curtailment because it depends on such factors as the amount of shipping and maintenance work.

Last week, Ocean Cement manager L. J. Glassford said business is down 50 per cent and one-third of the drivers have had to be laid off.

John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, an association of building unions, said the company's move at Bamberton "indicates they are paving the way to a cement industry shutdown.

"Cement sales fall off in the winter but they keep operating."

He said he will be in touch again with Ottawa officials because of the appearance of a move by the company to solidify the lockout.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch
Exclusive healing substance proves to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.
A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.
One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.
In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.
Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

CHARLES
. . . ooops!

LONDON — Prince Charles became the first British prince to make a parachute jump last July, but the experience turned unnerving when he found himself upside down with his feet tangled in the parachute rigging, he was quoted as saying in a book published Monday. "The first thing I thought was: 'They didn't tell me anything about this,'" Charles said.

The book Captains and Kings, by Neville Birch and Alan Bramson, said Charles' feet weren't twisted too badly and he quickly worked them free. The rest of the descent was normal.

The book deals with the fascination flying has had for royalty throughout the world. It also reviews the flying career of Charles' father, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Charles was interviewed by the authors during his Royal Air Force training.

"I'm stupid enough to like thrilling things," he told them.

The Prince took the parachute jump as part of his flight training.

BANGKOK — U.S. Vice-President Spiro Agnew arrived today to discuss the Indochina situation with Thai leaders. He is expected to make a one-day side trip to Saigon Wednesday.

Agnew came here from Tokyo where he had been representing President Nixon at ceremonies marking the reversion of Okinawa to Japan.

PHOENIX — William C. Carroll, the world's second longest surviving heart transplant patient, has died of cardiac failure after insisting he leave the hospital to be home for Mother's Day.

Carroll, 54, enjoyed 44½ months of active life with the heart of a suicide victim beating in his breast. He was the world's 36th heart transplant patient.

LONDON — Scholars long ago concluded that Robin Hood — like other legendary romantic figures — was pure myth, that is until Wieslaw J. Kliszewicz entered the picture.

Kliszewicz wrote The Times of London today to announce that after 12 years of research, Robin Hood's real identity has been established.

He was one Robert de Kyme, who was born about 1226 and died about 1274, Kliszewicz said. "Hood" is a corruption of the family name, Fitzooth.

HOLLYWOOD — Cliff Arquette, who created the comic character Charley Weaver, is at home after being in hospital since April 24 because of a heart attack.

A spokesman said the 66-year-old actor would be able to resume work on the Hollywood Squares television show in three or four weeks.

PARIS — The Queen and Prince Philip drove to the Avenue des Champs Elysees today and were greeted by a shivering crowd, reduced by bleak weather.

The Queen and Philip, on the second day of their state visit here, placed a wreath of poppies on the tomb of the unknown soldier under the Arc de Triomphe. They were accompanied by Premier Jacques Chaban Delmas.

The Queen and Philip chatted with several war veterans, and then rode down the broad avenue to the Paris city hall.

LONDON — Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon will visit Australia in October.

COWLEY, England — Ray Goodwin has an ear for wildlife sounds.

For the second year running, he has won a national wildlife recording contest. Goodwin's entry this year was a tape of a snail munching a piece of lettuce.

Last year, he picked up first prize with a recording of flies swarming inside cow dung.

A $3 MILLION MOVIE GAMBLE

SORRENTO, Italy — Filmmaker Billy Wilder says "the movie business today is like a vast roulette game — but with chips worth from a half-million dollars to $10 million."

"You don't know whether you're going to make a bundle or lose your entire stake."

Wilder is rolling a $3-million gamble with Avanta! starring Jack Lemmon and Juliet Mills. His premise: that the movie-going public is saturated with sex-charged films.

"I am making something very daring in today's market: a romantic comedy," said Wilder.

"I am betting that dirty movies will kill themselves off pretty soon. I mean, how far can they go to shock people nowadays? Producers have tried every mutation in the way of sex: man and woman, man and man, woman and woman, brother and sister. God knows what will come next — girl and sardine?"

There's no far-out sex in Avanta! It's the story of an American conglomerate firm executive — Lemmon — who comes to Italy for the burial of his father, who has died with his English mistress, mother of Miss Mills.

There is one nude swimming scene between the two reluctant lovers, but Wilder assured that it will be photographed from a distance — "we don't expect Lemmon to portray a Tarzan at this stage in his career."

This is the fourth collaboration of Wilder and Lemmon.

The others: Some Like it Hot, The Apartment and The Fortune Cookie.

Summer Course On Drugs

The Narcotic Addiction Foundation of B.C. was awarded a grant of $8,550 today by the B.C. government to pay for a summer school course on drugs, the government announced.

A press release from Education Minister Donald Brothers says the course will pay for travelling and accommodation expenses for about 120 people who will attend the course at the Walter Gage Conference Centre at the University of B.C. July 10 to 14.

Brothers said the Narcotic Addiction Foundation applied for the grant to finance a drug education program for teachers who work in the area of drug use and young people.

The $8,550 grant was approved under the government's provincial advisory council on drugs, which has awarded a total of $225,400 since last October, according to the release.

Cancer Campaign Going Well

Canadian Cancer Society officials say their campaign in Greater Victoria has achieve more than 75 per cent of its $100,000 objective, with four months of the fiscal year remaining.

Executive officer Wilfred Burton in a statement released on the weekend said "The target of $100,000 in the Greater Victoria area to support the provincial goal of $700,000 was an arbitrary figure decided upon with the establishment of the Vancouver Island office."

The society's campaign year ends Sept. 15.

Recycle Aid

Victoria West Neighborhood Centre will receive about $150 from Project Recycle.

The money is the proceeds from the collection of 30 tons of newspapers at the centre at 4026 Borden, Saturday.

Spokesman Bill Gerow said today that Project Recycle will operate future newspaper collections in much the same way, donating proceeds to needy groups in the area.

"We may have to keep some of the proceeds, in future, to cover the cost of operating expenditures," he said, "but all of Saturday's will be given to the centre.

"Using this method we can help groups in need and also get volunteers for our work," he added.

The next newspaper collection will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 10.

School Board Takes Stand Against Strapping

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Corporal punishment in schools is still considered a "no-no" by the Greater Victoria school board, it was decided Monday night.

A motion passed by the board says it "does not look with favor" on the use of corporal punishment in the schools of the district, despite the provision for its use in cabinet regulations.

The motion passed unanimously.

Trustee Peter Bunn said the stand taken Monday night is no different from the present understanding of the board's feelings on the matter — that the use of corporal punishment be discouraged.

The board had earlier received reports from a citizens' committee which was established to investigate community attitudes on corporal punishment.

One report recommended that corporal punishment be retained in the schools while the other said it should be abolished.

The trustees saved most of their choice words on the subject for the department of education.

They decided to send a letter to the department, asking whether it is the intent of the revised cabinet regulations, issued last month, to limit the board's access to information concerning corporal punishment in the schools of the district.

Several trustees felt this was the department's intention, and protested loudly against it.

Walter Donald said the school baord is "the subject of an attack — a systematic program designed to eliminate responsibility and authority from school boards."

Dr. Phillip Ney said that if there are attempts being made "to make subtle inroads into our authority, we should be the first ones to know about it," and supported sending the letter.

Dr. Carron Jameson agreed, saying the department's intentions should be "clear-cut and in front of us." He said the board could clarify the situation for other school boards in the province.

Board chairman Allan McKinnon said the omission of reference to school boards in the pertinent part of the revised regulations was "rather pointed," and also supported sending the letter.

In other business, the board:

—tabled a motion which would have seen one student from each senior high school in the district employed for a six-week perid in the summer to conduct a study on what students think of the school system and where it could be improved. The trustees felt the motion in the form it was presented was not well-prepared. It will be considered at a later date.

—decided to make application to the department of education for approval of spending $10,000 to start construction of a band room at Reynolds Junior - Senior High School. The students would be doing the actual work in their industrial education classes.

—approved the extension of an experimental project of computerized report cards at three district schools for another year.

—learned that the lockout situation in the construction industry has already affected conditions which will exist in September, when needed classroom space may not be ready for classes. The critical date for drastic action in the event of a continuation of the lockout was put at June 1. At that time, district principals will meet with the administration to discuss emergency measures at overcrowded schools.

Man Found Unconscious On Beach

A 28-year-old city man is in fair condition and improving in hospital today after being found unconscious on a beach Monday.

James Taylor, of 1145 Oscar, was found by clam diggers, a half-mile south of Hall's Boat House on Saanich Inlet.

Langford Ambulance Service took him to Queen Victoria General hospital.

An RCMP spokesman said Taylor apparently had lain unconscious since Sunday. He was found on a blanket with a book by his side.

Hospital authorities said he was breathing heavily and was in critical condition overnight, but was improving today.

Taylor's case was the latest in a series of what police consider drug overdose cases, which have resulted in the death of three persons in the past two months.

An overdose was found by a coroner's inquest to have been responsible for the death March 21 of Karl Wolfgang Ladinig, 19, of Durrance Lake.

Coroner's inquiries were held earlier this month into two other deaths, those of a 16-year-old Oak Bay youth and a 20-year-old Victoria man.

IT'S THE REAL THING for Saanich volunteers taking Civil Defence training in fire fighting Monday night. Abandoned dwelling on old Lambrick Estate was burned to provide 19 men on the course with first-hand experience. There are 17,500 registered volunteers with Civil Defence throughout B.C., about 5,000 of them in Greater Victoria. Besides fire-fighting, there are training programs in first aid, radiological detection, rescue work for earthquakes, slides and floods. (John McKay photo.)

4-Day Week Tried

One department of a provincial government agency in Victoria began a four-day work week on an experimental basis Monday.

The enrolment department of the British Columbia Medical Plan, which has about 100 employees, will work the same number of hours each week — 36 hours and 40 minutes — but in four days instead of five.

Executive manager Alan Brown said today the staff is delighted with the arrangement. From management's point of view, it's anticipated that longer hours without interruption will enable staff to work more effectively and productively.

"We'll both win," he said.

The old hours were 8.30 to 5 daily with an hour and 10 minutes for lunch. The new hours have the enrolment department staff starting at 7.50 a.m. and finishing at 5.30 p.m. with a half hour for lunch.

The experiment was worked out with the Civil Service Commission. Brown said he thought it would be about a month before it could be assessed.

Gov't Aid Sought For Wire Burying

City council's public works committee recommended today that Victoria seek provincial government help for the final stage of its program to put power and telephone lines underground in the downtown area.

Total cost of the scheme for the area bounded by Pandora, Government, the causeway and the Inner Harbor is $2.7 million, the committee was told by city manager Bill Hooson.

Of this, underground ducts for B.C. Hydro lines account for $2.5 million and B.C. Telephone underground wiring costs total $217,000.

The committee recommended that council apply for assistance under the provincial government's beautification fund created at the last legislative session, which provides for underground wiring costs to be split equally between the government, Hydro and the municipality concerned.

If the application was approved, the city's share would be about $900,000.

Ald. Clyde Savage pointed out that no provision was made for this in the city's five-year capital budget. But Hooson said the question of where the money would come from was not urgent at this stage, as the project would take some years to complete.

TIMES ERRED

The Times incorrectly reported Saturday that Foster Isherwood, who defeated MLA John Tisdalle Friday for the Social Credit provincial nomination in Saanich and the Islands, was once a federal Progressive Conservative candidate and was defeated by the Liberals.

Isherwood in fact has never run as a Conservative candidate. In 1965 his name was presented as a candidate for nomination, but he was defeated at the nominating convention.

Donors Hard To Find

When it comes to blood donors, Greater Victoria doesn't have an outstanding reputation.

For example, there were only 80 donors at Red Cross House Monday when the clinic's objective was 125.

But while community support has frequently been lagging, there have been some standout individual contributors. The local branch of the Red Cross noted four of them today:

H. H. Booth of 497 Fraser, with 106 donations; Robert Cameron of 3017 Craigowan, with 55 donation; Roland Banyard of 2028 Haultain, with 66 donations and Lt. Cmdr. Geoffrey Clark of 5939 Pat Bay Highway, with 44 donations.

Blood donor clinics continue daily to Friday and there will be two more next week. The public is welcome at all of them.

Senior Citizens' Centre Too Costly?

Oak Bay has a plush new senior citizens' centre but can the municipality's senior citizens afford to use it?

This was the question raised by Ald. Shirley Dowell at Oak Bay council's meeting Monday night.

Mrs. Dowell questioned a report made by the centre's director, Maybelle Murphy, in which Mrs. Murphy said the centre's luncheons "are growing in popularity" and that an average of 100 people take advantage of the centre during the week.

Mrs. Dowell gave details of spot checks she had made at the centre:

Wednesday, Feb. 8 — Four people having lunch, nobody doing any activity.

Monday, Feb. 14 — Four people carpet bowling and four people taking French lessons.

Wednesday, March 29 — Nine people at lunch, none bowling, eight playing chess. No craft rooms in use.

Tuesday, April 18 — Four tables of bridge, no craft rooms in use.

Wednesday, April 19 — Two tables of cribbage and six for lunch.

Friday, April 14 — Friendship Club — 112 in attendance for tea, bridge and film. (This club was in existence long before the centre was opened Jan. 14.)

Mrs. Dowell pointed out charges which she thought made enjoying the centre prohibitive to senior citizens on limited means. They included:

—Crewel embroidery, $10 plus materials.

—Oil painting, $12, plus materials.

—Hobby lobby, $10.

—Ceramics, $8 plus materials.

—Yoga, $10.

Ald. John Goult agreed with Ald. Dowell that high prices were probably stopping Oak Bay's elderly from using the centre.

He said it was "prohibitive and punitive" to charge such prices, stating that "it is simply a philisophical approach, an extension of the (Oak Bay's) recreation program. I would simply say that people in this age bracket do not have the money to pay these prices."

Unlike other senior citizens' centres in the Greater Victoria area, Oak Bay's centre is run by the Oak Bay recreation commission. Other centres are organized under the Silver Threads Service using volunteer help.

Goult emphasized Monday that in other centres no other charge, except membership, was levied.

Oak Bay's centre is being run by the recreation commission on a one-year trial basis.

In other business Mayor Frances Elford asked council to consider allowing a craft shop at Oak Bay Marina of locally-made goods under the leadership of Gregory Michaux, 3260 Woodburn.

She added that the greatest problem would be that of "establishing a precedent."

The matter was referred to council's A committee.

A public hearing will be held 7:45 p.m. Monday, June 5 on a bylaw that would prohibit the construction of similar housing on any one street.

In other business, council referred a letter from C. H. Ruttan, 1250 Beach, to A committee.

Ruttan asked, in regard to restrictions governing the parking lot at the Oak Bay Marina, "What is your policy and the enforcement of leaving boat trailers for days at a time and the overnight accommodation including sleeping, etc., in some units. Is it your intention to permit this?"

SANDWICH BOARDS ANNOY ALDERMEN

Victoria city council is being urged to clamp down on store owners who clutter up the sidewalk with sandwich boards.

The recommendation came from council's public works committee today, after some aldermen complained of the nuisance and potential hazard created by such signs.

Committee chairman Ald. Percy Frampton said sandwich boards so placed that they protrude onto the sidewalk pose a danger for some citizens, particularly the blind and the elderly.

Ald. Ove Witt said the number of these signs had increased greatly in the past three weeks and the problem was "heck of a lot worse" than when he complained about it a year ago.

"Let's have them removed," said Ald. Mike Young, suggesting that the existing bylaw be strictly enforced.

Health Care Clinics Under Discussion

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black has been discussing the possibility of health care clinics with the B.C. Medical Association, Black confirmed today.

Black said he has not been pushing the idea of the cinics but hinted that the government is interested in the idea because of the dollar savings and wants doctors in on any planning.

If the medical programs in the province are going to work, "then the medical profession has got to be part of the team," Black said in an interview.

He said that at a recent meeting with the BCMA he discussed the "delivery of the health care package" and this included health care clinics.

Crisis in Ye Olde Mama-Papa Shoppe

AS A MAN WHO LIKES his chow, I have never ceased to marvel over the beneficial effect of marriage on workaday food items. Corned beef, for example, is nothing much in itself. But partner it with cabbage and each is transmuted. Bacon demands eggs, and wherever appetites run hearty, fish finds its soulmate in the potato.

That last union in its most toothsome form is one of Britain's happiest gifts to the New World. Fish and chips, no less — sizzled to golden brown and needing only a touch of ketchup, salt and vinegar to make a family feast.

I don't merely like fish and chips, I love that dish, and so do enough other Victorians to keep 29 local fish-and-chiperies operating.

Some of these shrines to good eating are large and sumptuous. Others are what the trade calls mama-papa shops. Big or little, they combine to give Victoria a unique position as the fish and chip capital of Canada and probably of this continent.

To the uninstructed, it might appear that no special culinary skill is required of the cook who would serve this homely taste-treat.

But every trade has its tricks, and there's more to cooking fish and chips than dropping batter-coated fish chunks and fingers of spud into boiling oil.

Temperature must be just so. Then there's the business of the batter, which is evolved from jealously-guarded recipes that have stood the test of time.

It isn't just one batter, either. It may be a sourdough mix, or it may even owe its virtue to a judicious dash of beer. Also the batter that would lend eclat to a skinned and carefully-boned morsel of halibut — the all-but-universal fish and chip fish in these parts — would be less than bang-on for cod or sole.

After whetting your appetite and mine with such savory details, I'm sorry to have to report that our fish and chip trade faces heavy trouble.

If this grows worse, as it very well may, more than one papa-mama shop that has been serving families in its district for years could be forced to close.

The problem is the price of halibut, which threatens to turn what was once regarded as a working-man's meal into a luxury.

"Not so may weeks ago," says one man in the fish and chip business, "the cost to us of halibut was 58 cents a pound. The it went up to 60 cents, and soon to 68. Last Monday, the suppliers raised our halibut to 75 cents a pound, and we're expecting another hike before long. This has meant a 25 per cent cost increase to us, of which we've passed about 10 per cent on to our customers."

Denis W. Cullimore, president of Vancouver Island Fish Friers Association, underlines the predicament in which members find themselves.

As competitors for the food dollar, they must be in a position to compete on reasonable terms.

"If fish prices rise too high," Cullimore says, "We won't be able to compete. In fact we might be crowded into the strange situation where we are forced to price ourselves out of business."

The friers are hoping that the federal department of Consumers Affairs will cast an eye on their plight and do what it can to mend their situation.

Sometimes too, they wonder whether a frier who came here from Toronto in the late 1940s did the trade a long-range good turn when he wooed Victorians away from the humbler cod to the lordly halibut.

The prairie-province fish and chips fancier hasn't been spoiled in this fashion. Under that crisp yet yielding batter, he usually finds cod, haddock or sole.

In the East, halibut once more surfaces as the fish in demand.

But follow along to the Maritimes, and it's haddock and cod again.

All this leads me to the conclusion that we may have become a trifle too pampered out here. Fish, after all, is fish, and if less halibut and more cod will help keep my favorite papa-mama dispensary cooking on all burners, I won't grumble too loudly.

Just so the batter is right, and the chips are golden on the outside and tender on the inside as I like them!

Pat Bay Traffic Lights Worry North Saanich

North Saanich council is alarmed by the high incidence of traffic accidents on sections of Patricia Bay Highway which are controlled by traffic lights.

On the recommendation of Ald. H. A. Taylor, council decided Monday to seek help from the town of Sidney in making a complete investigation of local highway hazards.

Ald. Taylor said that according to RCMP reports, 14 accidents have occurred in the past year at McTavish and Patricia Bay intersection and 13 accidents at the Beacon Avenue highway junction.

"The extended timing of the amber warning light is much too long," said Taylor. "People try to hustle through, knowing the light is a long one."

North Saanich has been pressing the highway department for a traffic light at Amity Drive intersection on the highway but after Ald. Taylor's comments decided to involve RCMP and city council in making a detailed study.

In other business council received a letter from Klawanis Village Society of Victoria describing a low rental housing plan for elderly citizens on 4.5 acres on McDonald Park Road.

The land has been deeded to the club by H. S. Hoffa.

North Saanich residents will be given priority in the scheme, the letter said, and requested that council ask Sidney to arrange for connection with a nearby Sidney sewer service. The matter was referred to planning and zoning committee.

In accord with a request from "an overwhelming majority" of residents in the Dolphin Road area, council denied an application from CPR to rezone land in order to extend its freight wharf facility.

Ancient Science Spreads

WENDY DEY – EDITOR

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Helen Cheung, who grew up near Peking, travels the world to explain acupuncture, the ancient Chinese medical science now gaining wide attention in Western nations.

There are other Chinese women doctors practicing the "needling" treatment of assorted ills, she said, but so far as she knows she alone is globe-trotting to explain it to other professionals.

Set Up Practice

The physician, daughter of an acupuncture and herbalist practitioner, left the Chinese mainland in 1962 to set up a practice and consultancy in Hong Kong. But as it turned out, she's spending as much time travelling as in the Crown Colony, talking to individual physicians, medical societies, hospital staff and the like.

She's in New York from London and said in an interview that in the last 10 years she's lectured in Western Europe, including Britain, Italy, France and Germany, in the Orient, in some African nations, in Canada.

This is her second trip to the United States where she said most of her talks will be with individual physicians. There also may be some hospital staff conferences.

The doctor, a charming woman in her 30s, was delighted to read a recent UPI dispatch from San Francisco recounting the acupuncture treatments given by two Chinese physicians to the president-elect of the California Medical Association for his arthritic pains.

Dr. Thomas Elmendorf had said, "There's no question there is considerable relief of pain in my hip . . . the pain that I had when I came in (for treatment) is essentially and literally gone."

Dr. Cheung, who studied medicine in her homeland, said acupuncture has already found much acceptance in Western Europe and she's seeing "some change of face" now in the United States. Two years ago, it was not so, she said.

She expressed hope that President Nixon's visit to China and the opening of channels of communication between the two nations would mean more U.S. doctors going to her homeland to study the science.

Dr. Cheung carries with her a miniature of the human body in plastic and marked (in Chinese) with the 700 points of the body in which needles can be inserted either to eliminate pain or treat disease. She insists the needling is not painful.

Dr. Cheung also carries a brief history of acupuncture, which began in China several thousand years ago. At first, sharp stones were used to press or "needle" parts of the body. Then came needles made of stone, bone or bamboo. Still later, with the discovery of metals, the use of copper, iron and silver was begun.

Fine Needles

Now, she said, acupuncture is applied with ultra-fine needles of silver, gold or stainless steel. Its practitioners claim success in treatment of arthritis, lumbago, sciatica, paralysis, rheumatism, hemorrhoids, Parkinson's disease, general debility, prostatitis, asthma, numbness, stiff joints, backache, deafness and many other ailments.

Sometimes the method is supplemented with oral medication composed entirely of combinations of herbs whose formulas have been perfected over the last 3,000 years.

Now, she said, acupuncture has taken another giant step. It is being used for anaesthesia, with the patient fully conscious during surgery, but insensitive to pain.

LOOK, MA . . . NO CAVITIES!

Little Nadya Gasser, three, has a big brushing job. Dental hygiene of these dolphins is her daily responsibility, and so far she's lived up to it . . . not a cavity in the tank. Nadya's Swiss family owns the dolphin show which appears daily at Manchester, England, aquarium when it isn't on world tours. (AP Wirephoto).

"We started out for Munich-but somehow ended up in the hay."

It's funny how sometimes a strange turn of events can lead on to better things. Remember how you were driving the incredibly pretty "Romantic Road" on your way to Munich, and you stopped off for a quick look at the perfectly preserved, mediaeval, quaint—quiet Rothenburg. Quiet?

Within an hour you were in the hay with a bunch of students from Heidelberg on your way to the Shepherds' dances—and three days later you were still revelling in the Festival fun. Drinking, dancing and attending the historical plays. You had your own car, your own hotel—and you were having the time of your life.

That's Independence! The holiday freedom to go where you want, when you want. And change your plans at a moment's notice if something better comes up.

Independence Holidays: Your car and hotel for under $14 a day per person.

This summer, because we think an airline should offer more than just a "seat" to Europe and back, we worked out ways to give you all the holiday independence you could want—at the best price. And they're all Air Canada exclusives.

Like an Avis car with special economical rates—from $13.00 a day with unlimited mileage. And three types of accommodation starting from only $7 a night in over 500 hotels in 20 countries (both offers are based on two sharing and must be arranged before you leave).

And although they're all 7 day minimums—the days needn't be consecutive; you can scatter them over your entire stay, buy several packages, mix and match to suit your plans.

Another Independence offering is our "Open Jaw" option. You can fly into any of our 11 European destinations, tour around and leave from whichever city is closest to you—for little or no extra cost.

All this on top of a new 22-45 day excursion fare that's almost as low as charter. But unlike charter—we don't tell you when you have to go and come home. 4 days a week our famous Western Arrow leaves Vancouver for Frankfurt and you can be on it. You just book and go—and you can change your return date in Europe. Your children under 12 can fly for half fare. And you can charge it all on your credit card.

Add it all up: the holiday values, the new fares, and the 4 Western Arrow flights a week to Frankfurt—then work it out. The charter "seat". Or the Air Canada holiday. Which is really the better bargain? Ask your travel agent. And come see what you've been missing.

Which is really the better bargain?

AIR CANADA

The only airline from Vancouver to Germany. 4 flights a week by Western Arrow.

Laugh of the Day

DEAR ABBY: You have just made my day! In your column, you listed the three top causes of friction in marriage. Jealousy, money and cards.

It made me realize how lucky I am, because neither my husband nor I are attractive enough to anyone else to create jealousy, we have no extra money to fight over, and we don't play cards!

Then to top it off, your Confidential to From the Old School: "Welcome to the club. Very few of us who had 'old world' parents were told the facts of life by our mothers. All my mother told me, God bless her, was never to put bananas in the refrigerator," gave me the biggest laugh I've had in years.

All the bad news in the rest of the newspaper, nor anything thrown at me for the rest of the day, can erase the warm, light-hearted feeling I got from reading your column today.

Just had to let you know.

DEAR D. W.: We're even! Your letter just made my day! Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I rented an apartment in an expensive highrise building. About six months ago, a very lovely older couple in their 60s rented the apartment right next to ours, and we haven't had a good night's sleep since.

Their quarrelling and bickering can be heard until the wee hours of the morning. The way they shout at each other, they must be deaf.

We can't say that they are actually disturbing the peace because they don't have any crashing, smashing fights, just very noisy arguments that last until dawn.

We hate to complain to the management because these people are quite charming. Any suggestions?—The Folks Next Door.

DEAR FOLKS: If you haven't told them that they are keeping you up nights, that should be your first order of business. Perhaps they are hard of hearing, and hopefully your complaint will inspire them to get hearing aids.

Your letter raises two questions: 1. How do you figure they arren't disturbing your peace if they keep you up nights? 2. How do you define "charming"?

Expert Debunks Pill-Cancer Link

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An international authority on women's diseases says clinical evidence that oral contraceptives cause cancer in women is "non-existent."

Prof. Hans-Ludwig Kottmeier of the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm says there is still no good evidence to link birth control pills with cancer of the breast, cervix and uterus.

Kottmeier was attending the 25th annual meeting of the Kentucky Obstetrical and Gynecological Sociey.

'Hard Knocks' Alumnus Tops in Banking Circles

Following is the third of five articles on women who are practising liberation in Victoria.

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Getting ahead in the banking business means gaining experience, says the only female bank manager in the Victoria area.

"You graduate from the school of hard knocks" in banking, says Mrs. V. I. Dykes, manager of the Royal Bank's Brentwood Bay branch. "I was 16 when I started."

Now, at 44, Mrs. Dykes has a 25-year banking career to her credit, and she is one of a small but growing number of women bankers. Although Mrs. Dkyes is the only manager here, there are now many women accountants (comparable to office administrators) in local banks.

Her only daughter, Linda, 22, is also in banking. She has worked at the Royal Bank's main Victoria branch, its Hillside and Quadra branch, and has now been transferred to Sidney.

With "every move you learn something," said Mrs. Dykes. "You're looking at a different atmosphere and clientele."

One branch may have a business clientele while another may be mainly residential, she explained.

Mrs. Dykes joined the bank in Calgary after graduating from high school in 1944. Because of the war, young men were in short supply, so there were lots of women working in banks, although not in senior positions.

She married a sailor, John Dykes, and, in 1947, they moved to Victoria, where Mrs. Dykes worked at the Royal Bank's main branch. Two years later, she and her husband moved to Abbotsford, B.C., and, in 1950 they moved to Nova Scotia. They lived in Windsor, near Halifax, "on and off" for seven years.

The only period she didn't work in banking was during the 18 months she took off to have her daughter. Her husband's mother helped care for Linda when Mrs. Dykes returned to work.

"When you're married to a sailor you're alone a lot," said Mrs. Dykes. "I found (working) was a good way to get out and become part of the community."

John Dykes retired from the navy two years ago and now works in Esquimalt as an electronics technician.

In 1957, the Dykes returned to Victoria. Mrs. Dykes worked at the bank's Douglas and Pandora branch, then at the Hillside and Quadra branch. She was still a teller as were most women working in banks at that time.

"Generally speaking, most women were involved with being a housewife" in the 50s, she said. Public opinion and people in business both said women wouldn't stick to a senior job for long.

However, during her 10 years at Hillside and Quadra, Mrs. Dykes began to get promotions. First she became clerk.

Then the branch manager died suddenly. The accountant was new to the branch and didn't know the clientele, so Mrs. Dykes was asked to fill in for awhile as accountant," for continuity of service."

Satisfied with her performance as accountant, the bank decided to keep her on. An accountant is responsible for keeping the office running smoothly, said Mrs. Dykes.

In November 1969, the Royal Bank asked Mrs. Dykes if she would set up its new branch in Brentwood Bay. She had the administrative background and experience with loans a would-be manager needed. She accepted.

"A bank manager is the skipper of a ship," she said. Whatever problems arise, the manager has final responsibility.

She doesn't believe in the women's liberation movement because she thinks women's lib groups are directed against men.

"If you have a point to prove, it's as an individual you should prove it," Mrs. Dykes said.

Seat Makers Balking

TORONTO (CP) — Manufacturers and retailers of child car seats and harnesses have asked for a meeting with the federal Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

The want to ask for clarification of new regulations covering car safety restraints for children and add additional time to get old models off the market and new ones on.

The request for the meeting was sent recently from a meeting of manufacturers, retailers and consumer representatives called by the Ontario Safety League.

No Need

But Helen Morningstar, representing the Consumers' Association of Canada, said there is no need for such a meeting. She said the association supports the new standards and does not consider them difficult to interpret.

She said most car seats on the market now which meet United States standards, would need only a change in the type of foam padding used to meet the new Canadian standards.

The standards were issued by the department late last month to be met by June 1. Most of the car seats manufactured in the last six months have been made to conform to the U.S. Standard. Several manufacturers said they could make a seat by June 1 to meet the new standards as they understand them. But they want to be sure they understand them correctly because they might be liable to fines or law suits if the fail to meet the standards.

Time to Sell

They also want time to sell the seats now on the market while they get new ones made. Several of them contended the seats that meet the U.S. standard are acceptably safe.

Mrs. Morningstar said the association never has considered that standard good enough.

The Canadian Standards Association in the meantime is working on a set of standards expected to be ready in a year or two. The manufacturers and retailers also are asking for preparation time when those or any new standards are to become law. There are several differences between the present new standards and U.S. standard.

For instance, harness webbing must be 1½ inches wide. Harnesses are exempted from U.S. specifications.

Retarded 'Underexploited'

OTTAWA (CP) — Mentally-retarded artisans have the option of producing an unimaginative wooden chair or high-fashion, hand-crafted furniture, says Gordon Halloran.

The difference lies in the designs they are given to work with, said the young industrial designer displaying furniture resembling that from a high-priced import shop but which came from a workshop for the retarded.

The display was at the recent conference of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded. The products were designed by professionals, then hand-crafted by the mentally retarded.

Halloran, 25, is an industrial designer himself. He joined the association's full-time staff last August to begin a program to improve workshop products.

"Many of those who were working at the uninteresting piecework, such as envelope stuffing or pasting labels on cans for hour after hour, are capable of doing something more, of developing their skills further than that," he said.

Projects that he and the eight other staff members are developing will provide high-quality, marketable products and a training ground for those whose skills can be developed.

One of the first projects was to apply the basic wood-working talents of the retarded to manufacture of good-design furniture.

A basic design submitted by Ernst Baringer of Toronto was selected and the component parts broken down to things that could be easily made and manufactured.

A $30,000 federal grant under the Local Initiatives Program helped get the project going.

Halloran and his staff have had several offers, including one from a manufacturer interested in buying furniture in quantity.

"We don't know if we can supply this," he said. "We're not trying to compete with the large-volume manufacturer."

But Halloran is convinced that if imagination goes into the design and if the steps of production can be made simple enough, products are possible for which there is a real need.

Some other ideas for the 3,000 retarded in Ontario's 82 "sheltered" workshops:

A small kiln for firing ceramic products, silk-screen materials, draperies, wall-hangings, table linens and pillows and nursery-school or play-school furniture.

William Berendsen, adviser of adult services for the association, says a market exists for play-school furniture in Ontario homes, hospitals and schools for the mentally retarded.

"With the help of a good design and the development staff group, the mentally retarded can produce beautiful things," said Halloran.

"And we'll have happier people."

Fast-Talking Parrot Practises Sans Diploma

NEWARK, England (UPI) — A parrot is teaching mute patients to talk, a Balderton Hospital spokesman said this week.

The nursing staff at the hospital near here put the parrot, named Peter, in a ward with 40 men suffering from a mental disability which prevents them speaking properly.

Every day, for 18 months, Peter kept up a nonstop flow of words. Then one of the patients started to say simple words correctly.

Now, the parrot is helping teach the other patients to talk. Nursing Officer Donald Marquis said: "It started as an experiment. One man now uses words for the first time. They are simple ones, but they are the first step.

Glittering guarantees offered by so many manufacturers of consumer goods, often lure us into buying, even though we rarely understand if the guarantee actually benefits us.

The three-page consumer communique, Guarantees — Gifts or Gimmicks, explains that, in law, a guarantee is a warranty. It also outlines the difference between implied warranties (that an article is in good condition, that the goods conform with the description, etc.), and express warranties. These are specific promises by the manufacturer regarding quality, performance or condition of the goods.

Several express warranties are then explained in detail. For instance, when you buy something with a "lifetime guarantee' you probably think the article should last as long as you live. However, it usually means that it will last during the lifetime of the goods or the company, neither of which may be very long.

Finally, the leaflet tells you what to look for in a warranty or guarantee and what steps to take if a guarantee or warranty is not honoured.

This is an important publication to have on hand and to consult before any major purchase.

JELLY SIDE DOWN
nancy stahl

I am not particularly fond of animal acts. Rather than watching a bear in red velvet knickers ride a motorcycle, I would much prefer to see him out in the wild, doing something that nature intended him to do. Like raiding garbage dumps.

Over the protests of the children, I have vetoed their attempts to teach our dogs to do any of the following tricks:

SHAKE HANDS: While I've never been accused of being a fanatic on hygiene, I'm not particularly enchanted with the prospect of shaking hands with anyone who spends the entire day tromping through freshly fertilized tulip beds and spilled orange juice.

BEG: I'm not sure what other people feed their dogs, but I'd be embarrassed to suggest to our dog that he beg for the revolting muck that we put into his dish. It's terribly good for him and all, but he greets every meal with a resigned sigh and holds his nose with one paw while he eats.

SPEAK: I've never heard of a dog saying anything constructive, or even remotely entertaining. When you teach a dog to speak, you teach him to bark. Which is precisely the same thing that you bashed him with a rolled up newspaper for doing just yesterday.

PLAY DEAD: I'm admittedly squeamish about this accomplishment. I mean, suppose he became really good at it. You could go around for weeks remarking on how clever he is, only to take him in to get his rabies shot and have the vet tell you that it really isn't necessary, as he isn't playing after all.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.
PSALM 23.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

The Challenge of Alcoholism

According to the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare, chronic alcoholism is now the fourth most serious public health menace in the U.S. It is outranked by diseases of the heart and blood vessels, mental illness, and cancer.

It is estimated that there are 6.5 million American alcoholics; the number has gone up 1.6 million since 1958. It is estimated that business anl industry lose around $2 billion a year because of absenteeism, lowered productivity, and accidents all attributable to alcoholism. Alcoholic workers lose around half a million dollars a year in wages. In California, a study found that premature death comes to alcoholics about two and a half times as often as to the general population.

A number of investigators have concluded that at least half of the fatal auto accidents are caused by drunks.

According to one estimate, there are probably only 150,000 persons whose alcoholism has been arrested by medicine, psychiatry, group treatment or hypnosis. According to authorities, the consumption of alcohol has risen 45 per cent in the last 10 years, although the population has risen only 18 per cent.

Veterans Administration Hospital authorities report that one in five of the 109,000 patients in their hospitals get there because of too much alcohol.

SEEING-EYE DOGS

I just read that Seeing Eye has now trained its six thousandth guide dog. This fine organization, in the past 43 years, has supplied dogs to more than 3,600 blind men and women. Many blind persons return every 10 years or so to replace a dog that has died or can no longer serve. I read that the legally blind population in the United States is estimated at 425,000 persons, hence obviously only a small percentage of them have guide dogs.

The dogs at the Seeing Eye are trained for a period of three months, in groups of 10 or 12. Then the blind person and his dog train together for four weeks under the supervision of an experienced instructor. The Seeing Eye provides free round trip air travel for qualified blind persons from anywhere in the United States and Canada.

The Seeing Eye, Inc., is located in Morristown, New Jersey.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

Kingswood Plan Passes Opposition

In spite of bitter opposition by three North Saanich council members, including Mayor Trevor Davis, council gave third reading Monday to a bylaw declaring a 300-acre land parcel a development area.

The development land, known as the Kingswood proposal, bounded by Wains Road and West Saanich Road, is planned for private golf course and residential use with a total of 450 homes.

The third reading passed after stormy debate in which Mayor Davis insisted that insufficient legal information had been provided by agents for the land owner, W. G. Ellis.

Ald. Doug Boon, although in favor of the proposal, agreed that the information bulletin requested by council at the date of the second reading April 4, should be received before further action was taken.

Ald. Paul Grieve warned "the rural area will be demolished" with designation of this area as a development area.

"By carving a 300-acre section out of the rural zone," said Grieve, council will completely undermine its present zoning policy and "would have no leg to stand on" when faced with similar proposals in future.

"We are not going to hold many trumps if we go to third reading," agreed Boon.

Mayor Davis told council "we are undermining our credibility."

"Council has the prerogative in deciding where development areas go," maintained Ald. Neil Horth, who with Ald. H. A. Taylor, Ald. George Cumpston and Ald. George Aylard, voted in favor of third reading.

Next step in the Kingswood proposal will be drafting of a land-use contract by the developer which must be approved by council before a public hearing may be held.

Police Intensify Manhunt

Police on the Island and throughout the Lower Mainland are checking known associates and haunts of William Head escapee Randolph Johanson, wanted following a shoot-out Saturday night with Vancouver police.

Johanson is believed armed with a shotgun. A second escapee, James Howard Smith, 22, was shot in the jaw during the exchange of gunfire and was admitted to Vancouver General Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said today Smith has been discharged into police custody.

Johanson, 35, Smith, and Lorne Lillemoen, 26, escaped from William Head April 8.

In Vancouver Saturday night, Smith was shot and Johanson fled after a wild exchange of shots. Police had pursued them after a car was stopped for a routine check.

Smith has been charged with attempted murder of three Vancouver police officers. None was wounded.

He had been serving a 30-month term for trafficking in narcotics.

Johanson was in jail for 3½ years for possion of stolen property and parole violation, and Lillemoen was serving three years for breaking and entering.

Victoria RCMP said this morning a Canada-wide warrante has been issued for Johanson, who is listed as dangerous. He is believed to be still in British Columbia.

Nothing New In Pt. Hardy Bomb Probe

An investigation by the Victoria RCMP into a bombing attempt at Utah Mine near Port Hardy has not turned up anything substantial, a police spokesman said today.

Staff Sgt. Norman Sharp said there is "nothing new to report" on the bombing attempt, which was discovered April 25.

He said the case is still under investigation and that the RCMP has been checking out "a number of suspects."

A $2,000 reward has been posted for apprehension of the person or persons responsible.

Japanese Buy Mayo Lumber

Mitsubishi Canada Ltd. has acquired control of Mayo Lumber Company of Nanaimo in exchange for a loan of $3.2 million to the company.

Mitsubishi Canada, a subsidiary of Japan's top trading firm, will seat six members on the new eight-man board of directors.

The Japanese subsidiary has been granted 60 per cent of the shares of the 150-man lumber mill at Nanaimo and Mayo's timber harvesting lease at the head of Dean Channel, about 50 miles from Ocean Falls.

The Dean Channel lease, with an annual capacity of 50 million board feet, could be the more important factor in the deal when Mitsubishi begins negotiations with Crown Zellerbach over the possibility of purchasing the paper mill facilities and turning it into a lumbering town.

INTERESTED

In Vancouver, Mitsubishi Canada vice-president Akira Horie expressed interest in the Ocean Falls townsite but said no negotiations had been held with Crown Zellerbach at this point.

Crown Zellerbach has announced they will pull out of Ocean Falls next March and will close down the town if the mill is not sold before then.

The Japanese firm is looking for lumbering sites in British Columbia as the provincial government has insisted B.C. will not export logs.

Mitsubishi Canada is understood to be looking at a number of other lumbering mills as possible purchases as well as the Ocean Falls site.

Future purchases of small lumbering operations likely will be tested by the new federal guidelines on foreign takeovers.

The Mayo lumber deal was consummated prior to the announcement of federal policy and the Ocean Falls deal, if made, would be a takeover of an abandoned operation and likely exempt from the terms of the proposed legislation.

In Nanaimo, Mayo president Ginda Singh Mayo will stay on in his present position and will be acting general manager.

Mayo has been engaged in custom sawing under contract to Mitsubishi for the past two years.

Hydro's Pipeline Quote—$50.6M

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hearings into bids to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island opened Monday with a cost estimate of $50.6 million from Hydro.

The estimate is considerably lower than that of four private companies also seeking the right to build the line.

Hydro told the public utilities commission that it would use a route from Western Island to a point near Crofton, using Galiano and Saltspring Islands as stepping stones.

One of the private companies has also specified a route from the Lower Mainland, but most bids are for a more northerly crossing.

The other bidders are Malaspina Gas Pipeline Co. Ltd., which was originally given Cabinet approval, Pacific Northern Gas Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of West Coast Transmission, Centennial Natural Gas Col. Ltd. and Georgia Gulf Transmission Ltd.

The hearings, ordered by the Cabinet after a controversy arose on its preliminary approval to Malaspina are expected to last several weeks.

In putting forward its proposal, B.C. Hydro also objected to Pacific Northern being given permission to distribute natural gas on Vancouver Island.

Authority lawyer William Mitchell produced a 1955 letter from West Coast to the then B.C. Electric Co., saying it would not sell gas for use on Vancouver Island to anyone except B.C. Electric, unless B.C. Electric was given first refusal of the right to distribute on the island.

Mr. Mitchell asked the commission to uphold this letter only as far as West Coast's subsidiary, Pacific Northern is concerned. The letter was admitted over the objections of Pacific Northern lawyer C. D. Williams.

PENNY FOR THEIR THOUGHTS

MEMPHIS (UPI) — The police department's bomb squad rushed to the Traffic Violations Bureau Monday and opened a suspicious package received in the mail. Inside was a parking ticket and $4 in pennies.

Right Aid Question Not Asked—Bennett

Premier Bennett said Monday that 62 per cent of the people of British Columbia believe that equalization payments should be distributed to the poor people in the poor provinces.

Bennett called the legislative press gallery to say that a survey taken under "federal auspices" had shown a majority of people favor the equalization grants that the richer provinces of Canada make to the poorer provinces.

But Bennett said "they didn't ask the full question" — whether the payments should be made directly to the poor people, instead of to the governments of the provinces in which the poor live.

Bennett's survey, the premier said, shows that the people of B.C. came out 62 per cent in favor of direct payments to the poor.

Bennett added that in all fairness "my question" should be asked nationally.

The premier said the survey was an example of the Trudeau government trying to "sell the people a bill of goods."

Cultivated Broom Draws Many Reactions

May is the month when gardeners new to the Victoria area react in their various ways to plantings of cultivated broom. People from Europe are familiar with broom and gorse as wild plants in Central to South Europe and in Britain, so the idea of cultivating anything by the same name appears foolish.

The kinds grown in gardens here are all cultivated hybrids and forms quite distinct from those seen on wild land. They do not spread by seed nor become a nuisance in any way.

★ ★ ★

Brooms belong in three genera — Cytisus, Genista and Spartium with botanical differences not readily apparent. All lose their leaves (if any, for some are practically leafless) in winter yet retain interest at that period by their bright green stems.

Flowers are always described as being "pea-like", but what is meant is that the flowers resemble those of garden peas or sweet peas, not round as a pea. Usually white, cream or yellow, many newer hybrids have crimson, apricot, pink, buff, or even lilac coloring. Blends of these colors appear in some named varieties.

★ ★ ★

As we observe from the local wild brooms (these were introduced from Europe, not native to N. America) a poor soil is preferred, even a gravelly soil, but their roots go deep and will find moisture in the clay subsoil.

When purchased plants are to be set out give them old compost mixed with sand in the planting hole. No manures or fertilizers should be used.

The location must be sunny and well drained. Very often we see these colorful shrubs thriving on the top of gravelly slopes or in the fence corner of a shrub border where the soil has not been enriched for other shrubs.

★ ★ ★

The white brooms now in flower at Victoria's City Hall will be Cytisus alba; an almost flat golden broom you may see in a garden is likely to be Genista lydia; a tree-like fruit scented broom which flowers towards the end of May into June is Cytisus battandieri; another fragrant broom flowering almost continuously from June to September on long whippy growths is Spartium junceum.

Whatever kind you buy it will have been grown for at least one year in a container to be sure that enough roots are present to get the plant established. Transplanting from the open soil is rarely successful.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal, which arose in an expert game, is of interest for three reasons: (1) it emphasizes a point that should always be assumed by a declarer: that his opponents are making "honest plays," rather than deceptive ones (although there is no question that on occasion their plays will be deceptive); (2) that even experts arrive at very poor slam contracts at times; and (3) it contains an interesting "card-reading" situation in the play.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

After the opening club lead had been made, and the dummy came into view, South did not like what he saw, namely a sure club loser and a sure heart loser. But at the conclusion of play he was all smiles — and the opponents could not have done a thing about preventing him for fulfilling his contract.

West's ten-of-clubs opening lead was captured by dummy's ace, East dropping the king. While South appreciated that East could have been false-carding with the king (from the doubleton K-Q), South decided to believe East's play: that it was a singleton.

The ace of trumps was cashed next, after which the queen of trumps was led and overtaken by South's king. The jack of trumps was then cashed, picking up East's last trump.

South now led his singleton heart, West following suit with the deuce. On the face of it, one might think that South had to guess whether to play the king, hoping that West possessed the ace, or to play the jack instead, hoping that West had the queen. Actually, there was no guess.

On the heart lead, the board's jack was put up, East's ace winning. Since East had no club to play back, it now became a routine matter for South to discard his losing club on dummy's king of hearts.

For an expert who had concluded that East's king of clubs was a singleton, the play of the heart jack (instead of the king) was automatic. If West had possessed the ace of hearts, he would have played it in order to cash that club queen for the setting trick. Hence - when West didn't play the ace, it meant that he didn't have it.

Of course, if East had both the ace and queen of hearts, South was doomed. Thus, in the play, South had no choice but to inlulge in the wishful thinking that West had been dealth the queen of hearts.

Adult Educator Has to Be Special

LAKE COWICHAN — The role of director of adult education in a small community is not the same as it is in areas with greater population, says Dorothy Clode.

In areas like Lake Cowichan the director must mix right in with the people to assess the community's vocational, recreational and academic needs.

Mrs. Clode, 47, who has been director of the education classes for the past three years, said smaller areas are not as fortunate as cities where a course is almost sure to draw enough people out because of the large population.

Mrs. Clode works year-round preparing her programs by talking to the people, meeting with personnel people from industries and placing ads in newspapers to ascertain what courses are required in her district.

MRS. CLODE

150 PROGRAMS

Each fall the Lake Cowichan school district offers about 150 programs. Whether the programs run or not is determined by the number of people who turn out to enroll.

To make a class, under government regulations, there must be at least 12 people. The course will then receive financial assistance.

Each year more than 1,500 people register for adult education in Lake Cowichan. The school district, which has a population of 6,500 people — half of whom are adults — runs from Paldi through to the west coast.

Mrs. Clode said a fair percentage of those registered take vocational courses such as industrial first aid, forest industry courses, as well as lectures on administration, supervisor and management positions.

"For the past two years we have had an upgrading program for people who left school early but have not had a very good response," she said.

MENTAL HEALTH FACTOR

Mrs. Clode goes beyond the call of duty of director often when she helps arrange car pools or babysitters in communities such as Youbou and Caycuse to allow people to attend her classes.

Many women like to participate in basic sewing, cake decorating and badminton during the day.

Mrs. Clode looks at adult education as an important mental health factor.

"Often this climate leaves something to be desired," she said. "There is seasonal depression with the rainy season. Adult education can become a highlight to people during this time. It not only gives them a night out but it also gives them an opportunity to exchange ideas and meet people."

Mrs. Clode, who took her husband Ernest's position as director when he died three years ago, has a bachelor of science degree. She was a dietician before becoming a home economics teacher in Lake Cowichan.

"I really believe in the necessity of this program in a community," she said.

Mrs. Clode will be attending a three-country adult education conference in Vienna, Budapest and Yugoslavia in June. She will be one of 15 people representing Canada.

Mrs. Clode, who is one of the originators of the conference, said it will be the first international affair arranged by Canada on this basis. It has been arranged by the University of B.C.

LIFE COURSE SOUGHT

DUNCAN — A group of people in the Cowichan School District has asked the school board to institute a family life education program into the schools without further delay.

A petition, signed by 50 people, was submitted to the school board's regular meeting Monday evening.

"The rising incidence of drug usage, promiscuity and illegitimacy in our community is alarming to parents," the petition read. "Certainly the statisites demonstrate a need for an educational program for young people in this area."

The petition suggested that children should be taught in the primary and elementary levels about "interrelationships, responsiblities to themselves and others and social consequences.

"It is our understanding that there is a family life program available and ready to be placed in the curriculum of the school district. Could we please urge you to support us."

The petition was referred to the education committee. Board chairman Dave Bradbury said a family life program is currently under consideration by the board.

Grads On TV

DUNCAN — Graduation ceremonies on June 9 for 320 Cowichan Senior Secondary School students will be televised live on the school's channel three on the Cowichan Cablevision trustees were advised Monday evening.

Attending the ceremonies at 7 p.m., out-of-doors if weather permits, will be 1,000 guests.

The ceremonies were televised by the schools educational television students as well last year.

ERIC LEWIS has been appointed superintendent of schools in the Saanich school district. He was formerly Cowichan district superintendent.

Bike Course Set

DUNCAN — A pilot bicycle safety training course will be held at Bench elementary school, Cowichan Station, from May 23 to 26.

Cowichan school board approved the program Monday.

Director of elementary education Bob Moss told trustees that if the course, conducted by the Cowichan Regional Safety Council and sponsored by the school district, South Cowichan Recreation Commission and probably some service clubs, is successful more will be held during the summer holidays.

The pilot course, which will involve theory and practical work, will be supervised by the local RCMP, the school principal and members of the recreation commission, each day between 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Second Look Expected

NANAIMO (CP) — Gordon Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, told a club meeting Monday night he expects Premier W. A. C. Bennett will take a second look at the nuclear power for Vancouver Island. The premier has consistently opposed nuclear power for the Island.

Dr. Shrum said he accepted the invitation to speak here because from what he heard recently "Nanaimo was about to become the most misinformed community in Canada on nuclear energy."

He said nuclear power for the Island is necessary because it would be the cheapest, most plentiful and most pollution-free energy.

As for the safety aspect, he said, "there's more radioactivity from a radium-dial watch than from a uranium fuel pellet."

He also said there's never been a fatality in a producing nuclear power plant.

He suggested waste from such a plant be stored somewhere in the Rocky Mountains in a tunnel.

As for the proposed natural gas pipeline to the Island, Dr. Shrum said it could be wrecked by a ship's anchor.

Strachan To Speak

DUNCAN — Cowichan-Malahat MLA Robert Strachan will give a legislative assembly report at noon Wednesday at the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce's monthly meeting.

The general meeting will be held at the Commercial Hotel.

Mine Survivor Raps Company

WASHINGTON (WP) — A survivor of the Sunshine Silver Mine fire told a U.S. house investigation subcommittee Monday of men on their hands and knees gasping for breath with survival equipment that wouldn't work or they didn't know how to use.

Byron Schulz, 21, a "muck" loader, was the last man out on May 2 when the fire was discovered in the Kellogg, Idaho, mine where 91 men perished from the smoke and fumes that spread through the underground tunnels. Two survivors were brought out eight days later.

Speaking so softly that he could hardly be heard, Schulz told the house select subcommittee on labor, "I was extremely lucky. Some of the men weren't."

He appeared with a panel of officials from the United Steelworkers Union, who charged the Sunshine Mining Co. with "serious and callous disregard and violations of the safety rights of workers."

The union also asked for legislation that would transfer metal mine jurisdiction out of the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Mines to the Labor Department's Bureau of Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Schulz told of riding the hoist down to the 4,600-foot level, where "men were gasping for air. Some had and some didn't have respirators." He sent them up on the hoist's open cage elevator and when it returned, he went deeper into the mine, to 5,000 feet.

"Men were choking" and some had collapsed, Schulz said. Some had rescue apparatus but didn't know how to work it. There weren't enough respirators, and he had to use his pipe wrench to make the available ones work, he testified.

When his own mask gave out, Schulz said, he went up to the 3,100 level. There an open elevator had brought men up from the 5,600 level — more than a mile below the surface. Some were dead, with rags over their faces. The shaft foreman was one of the dead.

Schulz said there was nothing left to do but "get out of there." The man he was with called up to ask if more air could be sent down, and then slumped over and died. Schulz put a wet T-shirt over his head and escaped through a tunnel.

Lavern A. Melton, president of the steelworkers local at the mine, said that he and others had been penalized for reporting safety violations. He said that he had lost overtime pay and that Don Bechner, a member of the union's safety committee, had been required to clean up garbage dumped in the tunnelways after he had reported the existence of the garbage.

Bechner, who had escaped but returned after donning safety equipment, died in the mine.

CLC 'Do-Nothing' Body Says CUPE

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates from the Canadian Union of Public Employees are unhappy about the way they are being treated by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The delegates got together at the close of Monday's session of the congress conference and complained that the CLC couldn't even provide them with adequate facilities to meet in caucus during the week-long convention.

Stanley Little of Ottawa, CUPE national president, said he tried to get better facilities but the only place available was a section of the huge convention hall vacated minutes earlier when the convention adjourned until today.

A few minutes prior to the CUPE caucus, Hugh Lennon of Toronto, a CUPE representative, asked CLC president Donald MacDonald to step down and let younger people run the labor organization.

Mr. Lennon said he has attended CLC conventions for the last 10 years and the CLC had done nothing for his union. Neither, he said later, had the Ontario Federation of Labor.

"We have got a bunch of tired old men in the Canadian Labor Congress," said Mr. Lennon. "They should step aside when elections are held Friday."

Mr. Little told the CUPE delegates they could expect changes in the CLC in two years.

Mr. MacDonald, seeking re-election Friday, already has said he will retire following the 1972 convention.

During Monday's opening session, delegates spent a large portion of the day debating an emergency resolution calling for a "general amnesty for all trade unionists in Quebec" during the current labor crisis in that province.

The resolution condemned the government of Premier Robert Bourassa for adopting emergency legislation in April to end a strike by the public service.

Calgary Crime Rate Takes Sharp Jump

CALGARY (CP) — City police figures released Monday showed a sharp increase in crime during the first four months this year, compared with the corresponding period in 1971.

Non-capital murders have doubled, increasing to four from two. Three attempted murders have been reported compared with none during the four-month period last year. There have been 44 woundings, up from nine, 605 assualts against 508 and 74 robberies from 71.

Park Proposed

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed turned down an attempt to launch judicial inquiry into Calgary's $25 million proposed convention centre.

In a short telegram to Calgary Alderman Tom Priddle, deputy mayor, the Alberta leader said he will not act on his request. Construction of the centre, which includes a $10.5 million hotel, a $7 million museum and a convention and exhibition area worth $6 million, is to start this July. It is scheduled to be completed in 1974.

Fines Sought

SASKATOON (CP) — Mayor Bert Sears said today he will ask the federal government to give revenue from drug-offence fines back to the city.

He was commenting on a statement by Police Chief J. G. Kettles last week that the police were tired of doing all the work in drug cases only to have the fines go to Ottawa. Sears said the city spends at least $3,000 a year on drug investigations and prosecutions and said the city, not Ottawa, should get the revenue from fines.

Monkey Shines

CALGARY (CP) — The magazine published by the Calgary Zoo has added a new feature: A centerfold "zoo-mate" of the month.

This month the centrefold goes to Caroline, described as quite the prettiest ape they've ever displayed.

★ ★ ★

Plea Fails

CALGARY (CP) — A University of Calgary graduate student wants to establish a Canadian nature preserve in the Suffield military area near Medicine Hat.

Carl Norbeck, formerly a geologist, says the area could be called the Great Plains National Nature Preserve and could be created using lands now largely out of bounds for military use. British troops are scheduled to begin tank training exercises on the 1,000-square-mile military reserve early next month. About 200 square miles along the South Saskatchewan River have been marked out of bounds for ecological reasons.

★ ★ ★

Trials Completed

EDMONTON (CP) — The Bechtel Corp. of San Francisco has announced details of a new all-purpose vehicle for northern use which now has completed its first trials in the Arctic.

Called the Bechtel-Rolligon, the 13-ton vehicle rolls on super-wide thin-walled air bags instead of wheels or tracks. The air bags, inflated at pressures of only two to seven pounds per square inch, fit into the topography of the surfaces over which they travel, exerting a gentle uniform pressure equal to the air bag pressure.

★ ★ ★

Dissolution Near

CALGARY (CP) — The first step in dissolving the Alberta Association of Students was taken on the weekend when delegates unanimously approved the move during a meeting at the University of Calgary.

President Dennis Docherty was directed to "take all necessary measures to obtain dissolution . . . and to instruct the appointed trustee to disburse the association's remaining funds" to members who have paid dues this year.

★ ★ ★

Militancy Needed

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — A sense of militancy is needed to alert Canadians to the plight of developing countries, says Marc Baudouin, vice-president of the Canadian International Development Agency.

He said Sunday the problem of the developing nations is as great as it ever was and requires the attention of more Canadians to help seek solutions. Addressing delegates to a conference on international development, Baudouin said it has been popular to say the development decade of the 1960s has been a "total failure."

Hutterites Cited

EDMONTON (CP) — Not all communities want libraries, and Edmonton sociologist told a library conference.

Dr. B. Y. Card of the University of Alberta said some communities, such as those composed of Hutterites, try to retain their character and not give in to the prevailing society.

The Hutterites, he said, enjoy full employment, 100 per cent participation of all members in the community, freedom from alcoholism, divorce and crime. In short, they "hold a unique position in the groups of Alberta."

Costlier Farming Found in West

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of running a farm rose on the average by 3.1 per cent from the last quarter of 1970 to the last quarter of 1971, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

While eastern farmers faced over-all price increases of 2.7 per cent for buildings, machinery, materials, labor and financing, western farmers faced increases of 3.5 per cent.

The average cost of mortgage credit rose 9.3 per cent in the east and 7.9 in the west. Total land and building costs rose 5.3 per cent in the east and 2.9 per cent in the west.

Machinery and motor vehicle costs were up 3.6 per cent in the east and three per cent in the west.

Labor costs rose 5.6 per cent in the east and 6.6. per cent in the west.

The cost of other materials and services stayed steady in the east, as drops in fertilizer and feed prices balanced a 9.6-per-cent increase in prices of feeder cattle.

In the west, the cost of other materials an supplies rose 3.6 per cent, as fertilizer went up 5.8 per cent and feed rose 1.4 per cent while prices for feeder cattle increased by 8.7 per cent.

Unionists Pick Jail

QUEBEC (CP) — Thirty-four leaders of Quebec public service unions renounced the conditions of their bail pending appeal on contempt of court sentences today and prepared to enter prison to serve their jail terms.

The move was announced at a news conference by Norbert Rodrigue, president of the National Federation of Services and acting leader of a common front of public service unions in the province.

The leaders would surrender at a police station later today and expected to begin immediately serving sentences of up to six months in prison.

Rodrigue said the 34, cited for contempt of court injunctions during an April strike, will be paid from union funds during their time in prison.

They will join three top Quebec labor federation presidents sentenced a week ago to one-year terms for contempt.

The sentences last week sparked province-wide labor turmoil that is continuing.

He also said the common front of public service unions remains ready to negotiate with the government, but only "in a normal context."

He said this meant the common front leaders would have to be freed to act as spokesmen in negotiations.

They are Marcel Pepin, president of the 250,000 member Confederation of National Trade Unions, Louis Laberge, president of the 250,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor and Yvon Charbonneau, president of the 70,000-member Quebec Teachers Corp.

All the contempt sentences were imposed for counselling union members to defy injunctions ordering a return to work in some Quebec hospitals.

Reporters were told the 34 persons who were to turn themselves in for imprisonment today were not trying to make martyrs of themselves.

Rodrigue said they preferred to serve their sentences now rather than in a year or two.

In a briefing before they left to turn themselves in at a police station, they were told to ask to see a parole officer immediately and make a request for parole.

Wheelchair Campaign Vowed

Times New Service

Alabama Governor George Wallace, crippled by a would-be assassin's bullet lodged near his spine today vowed from his hospital bed to continue his campaign for the U.S. presidency — Even if he has to take to the hustings in a wheelchair. (See also Page 3.)

Doctors at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md., outside Washington say that Wallace, 52, is paralysed from the waist down as a result of the bullet, one of two which struck him at a shopping centre rally in Laurel, Md., Monday.

Dr. Joseph Schanno, vascular surgeon at the hospital, said Wallace spent a peaceful night following emergency surgery in which it was decided not to remove the .38 slug at the base of his spine.

The governor is in satisfactory condition, but still on the critical list.

"Nobody with this kind of injury is completely out of danger for several days," the surgeon added.

The governor's only comment on his injuries had been "it hurts," Dr. Schanno said.

Wallace was given eight pints of blood Monday night and has not eaten since he was admitted to the hospital.

Any decision on removing the bullet lodged against his spine will be taken later by a team of neuro-surgeons, Dr. Schanno said.

"It would not have been to any advantage to have gone ahead and removed it last night," he added.

Wallace was hit by four or five bullets, only two of which remained in his body. One was removed from his right shoulder during emergency surgery, Monday.

In police custody, charged in the shooting is Arthur Bremer, a 21-year-old white man from Milwaukee.

Three other people were wounded in the hail of bullets which felled Gov. Wallace — a woman campaign worker, an Albama state trooper, serving as his bodyguard and a secret service agent.

All are reported recovering from their wounds and in satisfactory condition.

A Baltimore magistrate Monday night ordered Bremer held under $200,000 bond on charges of shooting Wallace and the secret service agent. A court appearance is scheduled for May 24.

If both his victims live, Bremer faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count. Should either die, the penalty is death.

Bremer, a nondescript former photography student had been thought to be a supporter of the Alabama governor.

When arrested he was wearing a Wallace button in his lapel. There was also a Wallace sticker on his apartment door.

Following Bremer's arrest, police discovered that he had been questioned for four hours by officers in Kalamazoo, Mich., before a Wallace rally there Saturday.

He was picked up after police received a complaint about a "suspicious man" and released after questioning.

He was also arrested last

CONNALLY RESIGNS FROM NIXON CABINET

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon made a surprise personal announcement today that Treasury Secretary John Connally — "a tower of strength for the president" — is resigning.

Nixon told reporters that he will nominate George P. Shultz, former secretary of labor and currently director of the office of management and budget, to succeed Connally at treasury.

To take over from Shultz, Nixon will name the deputy director, Caspar Weinberger.

Connally said politics didn't figure in his decision to leave the cabinet after 18 months.

Asked what role he might play in the fall election campaign, he replied, "I don't know," and then added it's "entirely possible."

He has been the only Democrat in President Nixon's cabinet.

Although Connally declared that "I have no political aspirations and no particular ambitions," he declined to rule out the possibility that he might answer the call should Nixon ask him to be his vice-presidential running mate in this year's election.

The departing treasury chief said he didn't think such an offer would be forthcoming and asserted: "I don't want to engage in that type of speculation."

After a moment's pause, Connally added: "I'm tired and I want a change but I'm not going to withdraw from the human race or from the political life of my nation."

Connally served as secretary of the navy under President John F. Kennedy, resigning to run for the governorship of Texas. While serving as governor he was wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1963.

OVERFLIGHT TAX PROBED

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang was asked in the Commons Monday to review a bill passed by the Manitoba legislature that would levy a tax on airline flights over the province.

E. B. Osler (L—Winnipeg South Centre) said the bill, which has not yet received royal assent, would charge a 5 per cent tax on overflights. He wanted the minister to find out how the federal government could assure the free use of air space by Canadians.

China-N. Viet Supply Line Broken by U.S. Bombs

Times News Services

U.S. fighter-bombers today wrecked North Vietnam's air defence headquarters on the southern edge of Hanoi and cut the main pipeline feeding tanks and supply trucks for Red forces on the northern front in South Vietnam.

Also smashed have been two key rail links between Hanoi and China as well as the Dragon's Jaw bridge at Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of Hanoi, a key link in North Vietnam's supply network.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Command estimate that the Communists have only a month's supply for fuel for tanks and other vehicles.

Co-incidental with the stepped-up attacks on their supply lines, Red forces slowed their month-and-a-half long advance.

Saigon troops, meanwhile, continued to consolidate strength around the city of Hue in an effort to stall an all out Red offensive on the old Imperial capital.

However, in Washington, columnist Jack Anderson claims that the White House is in possession of a report from Saigon which says Hue probably will fall to the North Vietnamese.

"And, if it does," he told a law enforcement seminar, "the Thieu government will likely fall with it."

Also in Washington, U.S. specialists on mine warfare say that "it is essentially impossible to sweep modern minefields" of the type seeded around seven North Vietnamese ports a week ago.

They say that any Soviet or

TURN-IN-A-PUSHER PLAN URGED FOR B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio in the Social Credit government, Monday night proposed a "turn-in-a-pusher" program similar to those tried in Tampa, Fla. and London, Ont.

Speaking to a dinner held by the Vancouver Association of Insurance Women, Mrs. McCarthy advocated a system similar to one in Florida where anonymous tipsters are financially rewarded for information leading to the conviction of drug pushers.

She said the Vancouver business community could put up the necessary money.

"In Tampa they had 5,785 calls with 44 arrests and 34 convictions," she said. "In order to get 34 convictions it cost $2,000 in reward money — it takes a lot of organizing but very little money."

Ulster Youths Pelt U.K. Troops

Times News Services

BELFAST — A British patrol stormed through a gauntlet of stones, bottles and bullets today in an attempt to capture two youthful gunmen spotted in the Roman Catholic Andersontown area.

The soldiers, firing rubber bullets as they ran, were pelted by crowds of teen-agers in a 500-yard race to catch the gunmen, who took refuge in a house.

As they neared the building, the soldiers began drawing gunfire from its windows, but when they charged inside their quarry had vanished.

Another patrol in the Lower Falls Road was fired at five times by a gunman without suffering any casualties.

The incidents followed a night of civilian Protestant-Catholic violence here and in Londonderry.

An explosion wrecked a Protestant bar here late Monday night, injuring 17 people and sending Protestant youths on a rampage.

A 50-pound bomb in a parked car shattered the Bluebell Tavern in Sandy Row, a Protestant district in East Belfast.

Protestant youths threw up barricades around the street, while others charged into a nearby business district, hurling rocks at offices and smashing in windows with clubs.

Police said "older and wiser heads" finally persuaded the youths to return home, and Protestant residents removed the barricades.

50,000 Off National Jobless Total

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of unemployed persons dropped by 50,000 from mid-March to mid-April, reversing the pattern of the last two years.

Statistics Canada and the manpower department reported today that there were 592,000 unemployed last month, down from 642,000 the previous month and 659,000 a year earlier.

In both 1971 and 1970 unemployment rose slightly in April and had its big drop in May as warmer weather stimulated the economy.

Contributing to the improved unemployment figures was a smaller-than-usual increase in the number of persons in the labor force.

British Columbia unemployment fell to 71,000 last month from 82,000 the previous month and 72,000 a year earlier.

The number of persons employed across Canada rose to 8,085,000 in April from 8,016,000 in March, while the total labor force rose to 8,677,000 from 8,658,.

Both employment and labor force were up from the 7,737,000 employed and 8,396,000 in the labor force for April, 1971.

While the actual rate of unemployment fell to 6.8 per cent of the labor force in April from 7.4 per cent in March and 7.8 per cent in April, 1971, the seasonally-adjusted rate also fell, to 5.8 per cent from six per cent in March.

The seasonally-adjusted rate is computed by statisticians to show the underlying trend of unemployment by removing normal variations due to several factors.

The new figures are based on a survey of 30,000 households taken for the week ended April 22.

Statistics Canada said the March-to-April gain of 19,000 in the labor force was smaller than usual. The increase in young persons and men over 24 was smaller than normal, while there was a decrease in the number of women over 24 who were employed or looking for employment.

Unemployment and unemployment rates fell in every region, with Ontario showing the biggest drop. The number of unemployed in Ontario was 161,000 in April, down from 186,000 the previous month and 205,000 a year earlier. The Ontario labor force declined to 3,305,000 from 3,390,000 in March.

Widespread labor disputes in Quebec helped bring total employment there down to 2,192,000 from 2,135,000 in March. But the April figure was still higher than the 2,102,000 employed a year earlier.

There were 216,000 Quebec unemployed last month, down from 220,000 in March and 234,000 in April, 1971.

Persons directly involved in labor disputes do not affect employment or unemployment totals, but any persons laid off because of strikes elsewhere are included in unemployment figures.

Unemployment in the Atlantic provinces dropped to 73,000 from 80,000 the previous month and 75,000 a year earlier. The prairies had 71,000 unemployed in April, down from 74,000 in March and 73,000 in April, 1971.

School Board Takes Stand Against Strapping

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Corporal punishment in schools is still considered a "no-no" by the Greater Victoria school board, it was decided Monday night.

A motion passed by the board says it "does not look with favor" on the use of corporal punishment in the schools of the district, despite the provision for its use in cabinet regulations.

The motion passed unanimously.

Trustee Peter Bunn said the stand taken Monday night is no different from the present understanding of the board's feelings on the matter — that the use of corporal punishment be discouraged.

The board had earlier received reports from a citizens' committee which was established to investigate community attitudes on corporal punishment.

One report recommended that corporal punishment be retained in the schools while the other said it should be abolished.

The trustees saved most of their choice words on the subject for the department of education.

They decided to send a letter to the department, asking whether it is the intent of the revised cabinet regulations, issued last month, to limit the board's access to information concerning corporal punishment in the schools of the district.

Several trustees felt this was the department's intention, and protested loudly against it.

Walter Donald said the school baord is "the subject of an attack — a systematic program designed to eliminate responsibility and authority from school boards."

Dr. Phillip Ney said that if there are attempts being made "to make subtle inroads into our authority, we should be the first ones to know about it," and supported sending the letter.

Dr. Carron Jameson agreed, saying the department's intentions should be "clear-cut and in front of us." He said the board could clarify the situation for other school boards in the province.

Board chairman Allan McKinnon said the omission of reference to school boards in the pertinent part of the revised regulations was "rather gapped," and also supported sending the letter.

In other business, the board:

—tabled a motion which would have seen one student from each senior high school in the district employed for a six-week perid in the summer to conduct a study on what students think of the school system and where it could be improved. The trustees felt the motion in the form it was presented was not well-prepared. It will be considered at a later date.

—decided to make application to the department of education for approval of spending $10,000 to start construction of a band room at Reynolds Junior - Senior High School. The students would be doing the actual work in their industrial education classes.

—approved the extension of an experimental project of computerized report cards at three district schools for another year.

—learned that the lockout situation in the construction industry has already affected conditions which will exist in September, when needed classroom space may not be ready for classes. The critical date for drastic action in the event of a continuation of the lockout was put at June 1. At that time, district principals will meet with the administration to discuss emergency measures at overcrowded schools.

Man Found Unconscious On Beach

A 28-year-old city man is in fair condition and improving in hospital today after being found unconscious on a beach Monday.

James Taylor, of 1145 Oscar, was found by clam diggers, a half-mile south of Hall's Boat House on Saanich Inlet.

Langford Ambulance Service took him to Queen Victoria General hospital.

An RCMP spokesman said Taylor apparently had lain unconscious since Sunday. He was found on a blanket with a book by his side.

Hospital authorities said he was breathing heavily and was in critical condition overnight, but was improving today.

Taylor's case was the latest in a series of what police consider drug overdose cases, which have resulted in the death of three persons in the past two months.

An overdose was found by a coroner's inquest to have been responsible for the death March 21 of Karl Wolfgang Ladinig, 19, of Durrance Lake.

Coroner's inquiries were held earlier this month into two other deaths, those of a 16-year-old Oak Bay youth and a 20-year-old Victoria man.

TIMES ERRED

The Times incorrectly reported Saturday that Foster Isherwood, who defeated MLA John Tisdalle Friday for the Social Credit provincial nomination in Saanich and the Islands, was once a federal Progressive Conservative candidate and was defeated by the Liberals.

Isherwood in fact has never run as a Conservative candidate. In 1965 his name was presented as a candidate for nomination, but he was defeated at the nominating convention.

IT'S THE REAL THING for Saanich volunteers taking Civil Defence training in fire fighting Monday night. Abandoned dwelling on old Lambrick Estate was burned to provide 19 men on the course with first-hand experience. There are 17,500 registered volunteers with Civil Defence throughout B.C., about 5,000 of them in Greater Victoria. Besides fire-fighting, there are training programs in first aid, radiological detection, rescue work for earthquakes, slides and floods. (John McKay photo.)

4-Day Week Tried

One department of a provincial government agency in Victoria began a four-day work week on an experimental basis Monday.

The enrolment department of the British Columbia Medical Plan, which has about 100 employees, will work the same number of hours each week — 36 hours and 40 minutes — but in four days instead of five.

Executive manager Alan Brown said today the staff is delighted with the arrangement. From management's point of view, it's anticipated that longer hours without interruption will enable staff to work more effectively and productively.

We'll both win," he said.

The old hours were 8.30 to 5 daily with an hour and 10 minutes for lunch. The new hours have the enrolment department staff starting at 7.50 a.m. and finishing at 5.30 p.m. with a half hour for lunch.

The experiment was worked out with the Civil Service Commission. Brown said he thought it would be about a month before it could be assessed.

Gov't Aid Sought For Wire Burying

City council's public works committee recommended today that Victoria seek provincial government help for the final stage of its program to put power and telephone lines underground in the downtown area.

Total cost of the scheme for the area bounded by Pandora, Government, the causeway and the Inner Harbor is $2.7 million, the committee was told by city manager Bill Hooson.

Of this, underground ducts for B.C. Hydro lines account for $2.5 million and B.C. Telephone underground wiring costs total $217,000.

The committee recommended that council apply for assistance under the provincial government's beautification fund created at the last legislative session, which provides for underground wiring costs to be split equally between the government, Hydro and the municipality concerned.

If the application was approved, the city's share would be about $900,000.

Ald. Clyde Savage pointed out that no provision was made for this in the city's five-year capital budget. But Hooson said the question of where the money would come from was not urgent at this stage, as the project would take some years to complete.

Senior Citizens' Centre Too Costly?

Oak Bay has a plush new senior citizens' centre but can the municipality's senior citizens afford to use it?

This was the question raised by Ald. Shirley Dowell at Oak Bay council's meeting Monday night.

Mrs. Dowell questioned a report made by the centre's director, Maybelle Murphy, in which Mrs. Murphy said the centre's luncheons "are growing in popularity" and that an average of 100 people take advantage of the centre during the week.

Mrs. Dowell gave details of spot checks she had made at the centre:

Wednesday, Feb. 8 — Four people having lunch, nobody doing any activity.

Monday, Feb. 14 — Four people carpet bowling and four people taking French lessons.

Wednesday, March 29 — Nine people at lunch, none bowling, eight playing chess. No craft rooms in use.

Tuesday, April 18 — Four tables of bridge, no craft rooms in use.

Wednesday, April 19 — Two tables of cribbage and six for lunch.

Friday, April 14 — Friendship Club — 112 in attendance for tea, bridge and film. (This club was in existence long before the centre was opened Jan. 14.)

Mrs. Dowell pointed out charges which she thought made enjoying the centre prohibitive to senior citizens on limited means. They included:

—Crewel embroidery, $10 plus materials.

—Oil painting, $12, plus materials.

—Hobby lobby, $10.

—Ceramics, $8 plus materials.

—Yoga, $10.

Ald. John Goult agreed with Ald. Dowell that high prices were probably stopping Oak Bay's elderly from using the centre.

He said it was "prohibitive and punitive" to charge such prices, stating that "it is simply a philisophical approach, an extension of the (Oak Bay's) recreation program. I would simply say that people in this age bracket do not have the money to pay these prices."

Unlike other senior citizens' centres in the Greater Victoria area, Oak Bay's centre is run by the Oak Bay recreation commission. Other centres are organized under the Silver Threads Service using volunteer help.

Goult emphasized Monday that in other centres no other charge, except membership, was levied.

Oak Bay's centre is being run by the recreation commission on a one-year trial basis.

In other business Mayor Frances Elford asked council to consider allowing a craft shop at Oak Bay Marina of locally-made goods under the leadership of Gregory Michaux, 3260 Woodburn.

She added that the greatest problem would be that of "establishing a precedent."

The matter was referred to council's A committee.

A public hearing will be held 7:45 p.m. Monday, June 5 on a bylaw that would prohibit the construction of similar housing on any one street.

In other business, council referred a letter from C. H. Ruttan, 1250 Beach, to A committee.

Ruttan asked, in regard to restrictions governing the parking lot at the Oak Bay Marina, "What is your policy and the enforcement of leaving boat trailers for days at a time and the overnight accommodation including sleeping, etc., in some units. Is it your intention to permit this?"

Donors Hard To Find

When it comes to blood donors, Greater Victoria doesn't have a outstanding reputation.

For example, there were only 80 donors at Red Cross House Monday when the clinic's objective was 125.

But while community support has frequently been lagging, there have been some standout individual contributors. The local branch of the Red Cross noted four of them today:

H. H. Booth of 497 Fraser, with 106 donations; Robert Cameron of 3017 Craigowan, with 55 donation; Roland Banyard of 2028 Haultain, with 66 donations and Lt. Cmdr. Geoffrey Clark of 5939 Pat Bay Highway, with 44 donations.

Blood donor clinics continue daily to Friday and there will be two more next week. The public is welcome at all of them.

SANDWICH BOARDS ANNOY ALDERMEN

Victoria city council is being urged to clamp down on store owners who clutter up the sidewalk with sandwich boards.

The recommendation came from council's public works committee today, after some aldermen complained of the nuisance and potential hazard created by such signs.

Committee chairman Ald. Percy Frampton said sandwich boards so placed that they protrude onto the sidewalk pose a danger for some citizens, particularly the blind and the elderly.

Ald. Ove Witt said the number of these signs had increased greatly in the past three weeks and the problem was "heck of a lot worse" than when he complained about it a year ago.

"Let's have them removed," said Ald. Mike Young, suggesting that the existing bylaw be strictly enforced.

Health Care Clinics Under Discussion

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black has been discussing the possibility of health care clinics with the B.C. Medical Association, Black confirmed today.

Black said he has not been pushing the idea of the clinics but hinted that the government is interested in the idea because of the dollar savings and wants doctors in on any planning.

If the medical programs in the province are going to work, "then the medical profession has got to be part of the team," Black said in an interview.

He said that at a recent meeting with the BCMA he discussed the "delivery of the health care package" and this included health care clinics.

Crisis in Ye Olde Mama-Papa Shoppe

AS A MAN WHO LIKES his chow, I have never ceased to marvel over the beneficial effect of marriage on workaday food items. Corned beef, for example, is nothing much in itself. But partner it with cabbage and each is transmuted. Bacon demands eggs, and wherever appetites run hearty, fish finds its soulmate in the potato.

That last union in its most toothsome form is one of Britain's happiest gifts to the New World. Fish and chips, no less — sizzled to golden brown and needing only a touch of ketchup, salt and vinegar to make a family feast.

I don't merely like fish and chips, I love that dish, and so do enough other Victorians to keep 29 local fish-and-chiperies operating.

Some of these shrines to good eating are large and sumptuous. Others are what the trade calls mama-papa shops. Big or little, they combine to give Victoria a unique position as the fish and chip capital of Canada and probably of this continent.

To the uninstructed, it might appear that no special culinary skill is required of the cook who would serve this homely taste-treat.

But every trade has its tricks, and there's more to cooking fish and chips than dropping batter-coated fish chunks and fingers of spud into boiling oil.

Temperature must be just so. Then there's the business of the batter, which is evolved from jealously-guarded recipes that have stood the test of time.

It isn't just one batter, either. It may be a sourdough mix, or it may even owe its virtue to a judicious dash of beer. Also the batter that would lend eclat to a skinned and carefully-boned morsel of halibut — the all-but-universal fish and chip fish in these parts — would be less than bang-on for cod or sole.

After whetting your appetite and mine with such savory details, I'm sorry to have to report that our fish and chip trade faces heavy trouble.

If this grows worse, as it very well may, more than one papa-mama shop that has been serving families in its district for years could be forced to close.

The problem is the price of halibut, which threatens to turn what was once regarded as a working-man's meal into a luxury.

"Not so may weeks ago," says one man in the fish and chip business, "the cost to us of halibut was 58 cents a pound. The it went up to 60 cents, and soon to 68. Last Monday, the suppliers raised our halibut to 75 cents a pound, and we're expecting another hike before long. This has meant a 25 per cent cost increase to us, of which we've passed about 10 per cent on to our customers."

Denis W. Cullimore, president of Vancouver Island Fish Friers Association, underlines the predicament in which members find themselves.

As competitors for the food dollar, they must be in a position to compete on reasonable terms.

"If fish prices rise too high," Cullimore says, "We won't be able to compete. In fact we might be crowded into the strange situation where we are forced to price ourselves out of business."

The friers are hoping that the federal department of Consumers Affairs will cast an eye on their plight and do what it can to mend their situation.

Sometimes too, they wonder whether a frier who came here from Toronto in the late 1940s did the trade a long-range good turn when he wooed Victorians away from the humbler cod to the lordly halibut.

The prairie-province fish and chips fancier hasn't been spoiled in this fashion. Under that crisp yet yielding batter, he usually finds cod, haddock or sole.

In the East, halibut once more surfaces as the fish in demand.

But follow along to the Maritimes, and it's haddock and cod again.

All this leads me to the conclusion that we may have become a trifle too pampered out here. Fish, after all, is fish, and if less halibut and more cod will help keep my favorite papa-mama dispensary cooking on all burners, I won't grumble too loudly.

Just so the batter is right, and the chips are golden on the outside and tender on the inside as I like them!

Pat Bay Traffic Lights Worry North Saanich

North Saanich council is alarmed by the high incidence of traffic accidents on sections of Patricia Bay Highway which are controlled by traffic lights.

On the recommendation of Ald. H. A. Taylor, council decided Monday to seek help from the town of Sidney in making a complete investigation of local highway hazards.

Ald. Taylor said that according to RCMP reports, 14 accidents have occurred in the past year at McTavish and Patricia Bay intersection and 13 accidents at the Beacon Avenue highway junction.

"The extended timing of the amber warning light is much too long," said Taylor. "People try to hustle through, knowing the light is a long one."

North Saanich has been pressing the highway department for a traffic light at Amity Drive intersection on the highway but after Ald. Taylor's comments decided to involve RCMP and city council in making a detailed study.

In other business council received a letter from Kiawanis Village Society of Victoria describing a low rental housing plan for elderly citizens on 4.5 acres on McDonald Park Road.

The land has been deeded to the club by H. S. Hoffa.

North Saanich residents will be given priority in the scheme, the letter said, and requested that council ask Sidney to arrange for connection with a nearby Sidney sewer service. The matter was referred to planning and zoning committee.

In accord with a request from "an overwhelming majority" of residents in the Dolphin Road area, council denied an application from CPR to rezone land in order to extend its freight wharf facility.

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy buying pressure drove soybean futures prices more than 5 cents higher on the Board of Trade.

The bullish activity in the soybean pit shoved prices for the end-products substantially higher as well.

May corn was down slightly and then recovered to just about hold its own, while other options were fractionally higher. May and March deliveries of wheat were higher but the intermediate options were lower.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

Unionists Pick Jail

QUEBEC (CP)—Thirty leaders of Quebec public service unions renounced the conditions of their bail pending appeal on contempt of court sentences today and gave themselves up to Quebec police to serve their jail terms.

The move was announced at a news conference by Norbert Rodrigue, president of the National Federation of Services and acting leader of a common front of public service unions in the province.

The leaders will surrender at a police station later today and expected to begin immediately serving sentences of up to six months in prison.

Rodrigue said the 34, cited for contempt of court injunctions during an April strike, will be paid from union funds during their time in prison.

They will join three top Quebec labor federation presidents sentenced a week ago to one-year terms for contempt.

The sentences last week sparked province-wide labor turmoil that is continuing.

He also said the common front of public service unions remains ready to negotiate with the government, but only "in a normal context."

He said this meant the common front leaders would have to be freed to act as spokesmen in negotiations.

They are Marcel Pepin, president of the 250,000 member Confederation of National Trade Unions, Louis Laberge, president of the 250,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor and Yvon Charbonneau, president of the 70,000-member Quebec Teachers Corp.

All the contempt sentences were imposed for counselling union members to defy injunctions ordering a return to work in some Quebec hospitals.

Reporters were told the 34 persons who were to turn themselves in for imprisonment today were not trying to make martyrs of themselves.

Rodrigue said they preferred to serve their sentences now rather than in a year or two.

In a briefing before they left to turn themselves in at a police station, they were told to ask to see a parole officer immediately and make a request for parole.

Wheelchair Campaign Vowed

Times New Service

Alabama Governor George Wallace, crippled by a would-be assassin's bullet lodged near his spine today vowed from his hospital bed to continue his campaign for the U.S. presidency — even if he has to take to the hustings in a wheelchair. (See also Page 3.)

Doctors at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring, Md., outside Washington say that Wallace, 52, is paralysed from the waist down as a result of the bullet, one of two which struck him at a shopping centre rally in Laurel, Md., Monday.

Dr. Joseph Schanno, vascular surgeon at the hospital, said Wallace spent a peaceful night following emergency surgery in which it was decided not to remove the .38 slug at the base of his spine.

The governor is in satisfactory condition.

"Nobody with this kind of injury is completely out of danger for several days," the surgeon added.

The governor's only comment on his injuries had been "it hurts," Dr. Schanno said.

Wallace was given eight pints of blood Monday night and has not eaten since he was admitted to the hospital.

Any decision on removing the bullet lodged against his spine will be taken later by a team of neuro-surgeons, Dr. Schanno said.

"It would not have been to any advantage to have gone ahead and removed it last night," he added.

Wallace was hit by four or five bullets, only two of which remained in his body. One was removed from his right shoulder during emergency surgery, Monday.

In police custody, charged in the shooting is Arthur Bremer, a 21-year-old white man from Milwaukee.

Three other people were wounded in the hail of bullets which felled Gov. Wallace — a woman campaign worker, an Albama state trooper, serving as his bodyguard and a secret service agent.

All are reported recovering from their wounds and in satisfactory condition.

A Baltimore magistrate Monday night ordered Bremer held under $200,000 bond on charges of shooting Wallace and the secret service agent. A court appearance is scheduled for May 24.

If both his victims live, Bremer faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count. Should either die, the penalty is death.

Bremer, a nondescript former photography student had been thought to be a supporter of the Alabama governor.

When arrested he was wearing a Wallace button in his lapel. There was also a Wallace sticker on his apartment door.

Following Bremer's arrest, police discovered that he had been questioned for four hours by officers in Kalamazoo, Mich., before a Wallace rally there Saturday.

He was picked up after police received a complaint about a "suspicious man" and released after questioning.

He was also arrested last

CONNALLY RESIGNS FROM NIXON CABINET

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon made a surprise personal announcement today that Treasury Secretary John Connally — "a tower of strength for the president" — is resigning.

Nixon told reporters that he will nominate George P. Shultz, former secretary of labor and currently director of the office of management and budget, to succeed Connally at treasury.

To take over from Shultz, Nixon will name the deputy director, Caspar Weinberger.

Connally said politics didn't figure in his decision to leave the cabinet after 18 months.

Asked what role he might play in the fall election campaign, he replied, "I don't know," and then added it's "entirely possible."

He has been the only Democrat in President Nixon's cabinet.

Although Connally declared that "I have no political aspirations and no particular ambitions," he declined to rule out the possibility that he might answer the call should Nixon ask him to be his vice-presidential running mate in this year's election.

The departing treasury chief said he didn't think such an offer would be forthcoming and asserted: "I don't want to engage in that type of speculation."

After a moment's pause, Connally added: "I'm tired and I want a change but I'm not going to withdraw from the human race or from the political life of my nation."

Connally served as secretary of the navy under President John F. Kennedy, resigning to run for the governorship of Texas. While serving as governor he was wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1963.

OVERFLIGHT TAX PROBED

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang was asked in the Commons Monday to review a bill passed by the Manitoba legislature that would levy a tax on airline flights over the province.

E. B. Osler (L—Winnipeg South Centre) said the bill, which has not yet received royal assent, would charge a 5 per cent tax on overflights. He wanted the minister to find out how the federal government could assure the free use of air space by Canadians.

China-N. Viet Supply Line Broken by U.S. Bombs

Times News Services

U.S. fighter-bombers today wrecked North Vietnam's air defence headquarters on the southern edge of Hanoi and cut the main pipeline feeding tanks and supply trucks for Red forces on the northern front in South Vietnam.

Also smashed have been two key rail links between Hanoi and China as well as the Dragon's Jaw bridge at Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of Hanoi, a key link in North Vietnam's supply network.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Command estimate that the Communists have only a month's supply for fuel for tanks and other vehicles.

Co-incidental with the stepped-up attacks on their supply lines, Red forces slowed their month-and-a-half long advance.

Saigon troops, meanwhile, continued to consolidate strength around the city of Hue in an effort to stall an all-out Red offensive on the old Imperial capital.

However, in Washington, columnist Jack Anderson claims that the White House is in possession of a report from Saigon which says Hue probably will fall to the North Vietnamese.

"And, if it does," he told a law enforcement seminar, "the Thieu government will likely fall with it."

Also in Washington, U.S. specialists on mine warfare say that "it is essentially impossible to sweep modern minefields" of the type seeded around seven North Vietnamese ports a week ago.

They say that any Soviet or

TURN-IN-A-PUSHER PLAN URGED FOR B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio in the Social Credit government, Monday night proposed a "turn-in-a-pusher" program similar to those tried in Tampa, Fla. and London, Ont.

Speaking to a dinner held by the Vancouver Association of Insurance Women, Mrs. McCarthy advocated a system similar to one in Florida where anonymous tipsters are financially rewarded for information leading to the conviction of drug pushers.

She said the Vancouver business community could put up the necessary money.

"In Tampa they had 5,785 calls with 44 arrests and 34 convictions," she said. "In order to get 34 convictions it cost $2,000 in reward money — it takes a lot of organizing but very little money."

Ulster Youths Pelt U.K. Troops

Times News Services

BELFAST — A British patrol stormed through a gauntlet of stones, bottles and bullets today in an attempt to capture two youthful gunmen spotted in the Roman Catholic Andersontown area.

The soldiers, firing rubber bullets as they ran, were pelted by crowds of teen-agers in a 500-yard race to catch the gunmen, who took refuge in a house.

As they neared the building, the soldiers began drawing gunfire from its windows, but when they charged inside their quarry had vanished.

Another patrol in the Lower Falls Road was fired at five times by a gunman without suffering any casualties.

The incidents followed a night of civilian Protestant-Catholic violence here and in Londonderry.

An explosion wrecked a Protestant bar here late Monday night, injuring 17 people and sending Protestant youths on a rampage.

A 50-pound bomb in a parked car shattered the Bluebell Tavern in Sandy Row, a Protestant district in East Belfast.

Protestant youths threw up barricades around the street, while others charged into a nearby business district, hurling rocks at offices and smashing in windows with clubs.

Police said "older and wiser heads" finally persuaded the youths to return home, and Protestant residents removed the barricades.

50,000 Off National Jobless Total

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of unemployed persons dropped by 50,000 from mid-March to mid-April, reversing the pattern of the last two years.

Statistics Canada and the manpower department reported today that there were 592,000 unemployed last month, down from 642,000 the previous month and 659,000 a year earlier.

In both 1971 and 1970 unemployment rose slightly in April and had its big drop in May as warmer weather stimulated the economy.

Contributing to the improved unemployment figures was a smaller-than-usual increase in the number of persons in the labor force.

British Columbia unemployment fell to 71,000 last month from 82,000 the previous month and 72,000 a year earlier.

The number of persons employed across Canada rose to 8,085,000 in April from 8,016,000 in March, while the total labor force rose to 8,677,000 from 8,658,.

Both employment and labor force were up from the 7,737,000 employed and 8,396,000 in the labor force for April, 1971.

While the actual rate of unemployment fell to 6.8 per cent of the labor force in April from 7.4 per cent in March and 7.8 per cent in April, 1971, the seasonally-adjusted rate also fell, to 5.8 per cent from six per cent in March.

The seasonally-adjusted rate is computed by statisticians to show the underlying trend of unemployment by removing normal variations due to several factors.

The new figures are based on a survey of 30,000 households taken for the week ended April 22.

Statistics Canada said the March-to-April gain of 19,000 in the labor force was smaller than usual. The increase in young persons and men over 24 was smaller than normal, while there was a decrease in the number of women over 24 who were employed or looking for employment.

Unemployment and unemployment rates fell in every region, with Ontario showing the biggest drop. The number of unemployed in Ontario was 161,000 in April, down from 186,000 the previous month and 205,000 a year earlier. The Ontario labor force declined to 3,305,000 from 3,390,000 in March.

Widespread labor disputes in Quebec helped bring total employment there down to 2,192,000 from 2,135,000 in March. But the April figure was still higher than the 2,102,000 employed a year earlier.

There were 216,000 Quebec unemployed last month, down from 220,000 in March and 234,000 in April, 1971.

Persons directly involved in labor disputes do not affect employment or unemployment totals, but any persons laid off because of strikes elsewhere are included in unemployment figures.

Unemployment in the Atlantic provinces dropped to 73,000 from 80,000 the previous month and 75,000 a year earlier. The prairies had 71,000 unemployed in April, down from 74,000 in March and 73,000 in April, 1971.
